the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1998 (Department of Health 1999). The number of people employed in the health sector has increased by 1.2 million, from 2.2 million in 1980 to 3.4 million in 1998.

There is a growing emphasis on the need to improve the quality of care and services provided by the public sector. This has led to a number of initiatives, including the introduction of the Health Care Act 1999, which sets out the framework for the regulation of health care. The Act requires health care providers to ensure that they provide a high standard of care and services, and to be held accountable for their performance. THEY'RE ALL —

They All Tend To Be . . .

Much like April showers eventually bring spring flowers, some things in life are bound to happen.

Life withholds many situations that we either look forward to or try to avoid, but from any perspective, these experiences are "the toppings of the cherry pie of life."

No matter what happens during the day, life always has some point of reward.

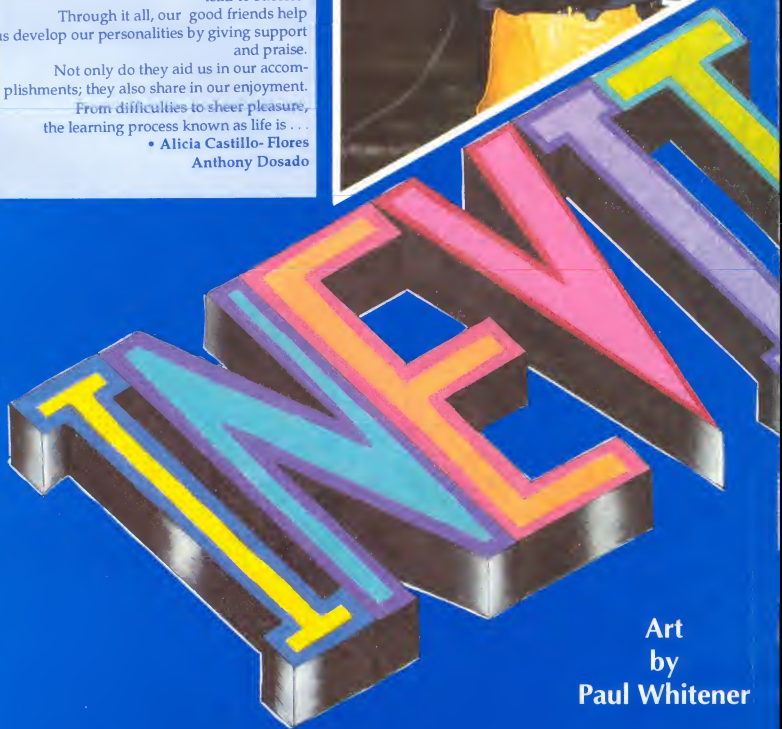

Determination and hard work provide us with good grades which will eventually lead to success.

Through it all, our good friends help us develop our personalities by giving support and praise.

Not only do they aid us in our accomplishments; they also share in our enjoyment.

From difficulties to sheer pleasure, the learning process known as life is . . .

LEGHS!

HHS SPOTLIGHT SHINES ON VARIOUS ACTIVITIES

The spotlights shine brightly on Highland High School.

Perhaps the brightest spotlight of all remains Homecoming. With this year's theme, "A Night at the Movies", students threw their hearts and souls into producing floats for the parade and making Spirit Week the best they possibly could.

Along with Homecoming, there are several other events which shine radiantly on HHS students such as Turnabout, Prom, post-game dances, and many more.

HHS also gives all students their chance to shine in the spotlight, whether that chance is given in athletics, clubs, academics and numerous activities.

No matter how hard you try to escape the spotlight, attending Highland High makes it inevitable!

• Selena Cox

TRADITIONS

Everlasting
Belief

"Run, the cops are coming!" yells a concerned senior.

These words can be heard often during the week of The Battle of the Bridge. Many students thrive on the excitement of the tradition of the painting of the bridge. Munster and Highland have both equally participated in the competition.

However, that is not the only tradition kept through the years at Highland. Spirit Week is another popular tradition that receives a lot of enthusiasm from students. Senior Gina Giovanelli says, "The tradition of dressing up has always been a highlight at Homecoming. It brings out the spirit in everyone who joins in."

Other traditions that exist are seen in the sports, clubs, and classes. The favorite one among classes is the cultural experience. A few in sports are braiding of hair, shaving of legs, and wacky clothing.

Traditions will always continue even when the faces and names of the students change.

Homecoming King and Queen Paul Callaway and Kelly Biesen dance to the theme song. Blair Brown hustles.

Sophomore Megan Wallner gives a tug during the tug-o-war. Band members play for the crowd during half time.

Superstars

The fun of it all
was trying to do something out of this world!

Every year the gymnasium is filled with the raging spirit of participants from freshmen through senior status. They all unite to conquer and defeat their opponents from the different classes.

The events this year were divided into Frosh v. Soph and Juniors v. Seniors. The classes with the most spirit were truly shown in the sophomores and seniors. However, the seniors left the rest in the dust. Senior Randy Pete says, "It's a great feeling to know that we have dominated superstars since our freshmen year, and that we could still live up to the challenge."

The seniors certainly had an obstacle to overcome. There were eight challenging activities to participate in. They were the lifesaver race, pyramid, pie eating contest, three-legged race, wheel barrel race, tug-of-war, the human knot, and the potato race. The new events this year were the lifesaver race, human knot, and the potato race. Senior Jill Bishop says, "The new events were fun and exciting. They made Superstars more interesting to watch from the side lines."

The messiest contest was saved for last. The pie eating contest consisted of various flavors all topped with whip cream to add to the effects. Junior Koula Amanditis says, "I couldn't even finish my own piece of pie before the guys were done with theirs."

Superstars ended with spirit abounding from everyone there. The activities gave the football team the desire and courage to play their best against Munster. It was truly a "Battle of the Bridge".

Senior Melissa Zimmerman and Doug Scherwin participate in the lifesaver race. Sophomores build their pyramid.

Foot+Loose

Highland students
definitely kicked off their Sunday shoes!

The parade, Spirit Week, the bridge, superstars, and the big game is over. The final episode of Highland's Homecoming week is traditionally the dance.

This year's theme "A Night at the Movies" left the cafeteria with a splash from the sea. Sea shells on the walls, fish floating above, and scenes around the room added an extra touch to make thenight perfect. "I didn't even recognize the cafeteria, they really put a lot of work into decorating this year," says senior Melissa Mull.

There was also a screen rolling Disney's Little Mermaid, which was an original idea that added an alternative for those shy people who needed something else to stare at. "I love that movie; I was tempted to just lone out in front of the screen," says Homecoming Court member Randy Pete.

Everyone hummed along to "Part of this World", a song to fit the dances' theme "Under the Sea", as the court took over the floor. King Paul Callaway and Queen Kelly Biesen were admired by all, before everyone joined in. The dancing went on from 7:30 to 10:30. "My feet didn't stop all night, except to enjoy the refreshments," says junior Laura Hoolehan, "The music was great."

"This dance was the best ever, but I just wanted to go eat," claims junior Joe Rhodes. Most people have a great time at the dance, but can't wait to rest their feet with their friends at their favorite restaurant.

Homecoming Week might have ended there, but the tradition of Homecoming will go on and on.

or not? Highland fans make the magic of Tinsel Town shine!

Lights, camera, action! This year's Homecoming theme just happened to be Night at the Movies. It seemed as though we were in the midst of Hoollywood as the various floats from the different classes and the elementary schools of the Town of Highland showed their support for their hometown Trojans.

Highland Trojans showed great improvement from the previous years. They seemed to have a great amount of confidence and stamina as they would not succumb to the forces of their opponents.

Amongst the different floats that were ready to be greeted with flashes as they strolled down Kennedy Avenue were the Trojan Football players in their almighty truck, filled with enthusiasm and anxious to begin the game.

There were also many creative floats, ranging from Foor Weddings and a Funeral, to Ghostbusters.

The first-place winners of the float competition were the Junior class with the Wizard of Oz and second place went to National Art Honor Society with the Flintstones.

There were many clubs that participated in the competition. Including French Club with Beauty and the Beast, Theater Company with Night of the Living Dead, and German Club with Das Boat.

The court members resembled movie stars as they were driven in the parade in shiny convertibles.

The parade was a great success leaving Highland High School students with great memories.

◆ Alicia Castillo-Flores

Juniors displayed a lot of spirit this Homecoming. Cheerleader, Kelly Martin supported her team with cheers while Phil Wojnicz and Rich Segally showed off their great costumes for their float. Ms. Boyd and Mrs. Rieckhoff danced to the Electric Slide.

The parents from the elementary schools played an active role in the planning of their float for the parade while the seniors were anxious to "Slime the Mustangs" on their Ghostbusters Homecoming float this year, however, the Trojans were defeated.

Jeff Smigla watches his team from the sidelines due to injury, as Brandi Cowgill captures the moment at the Homecoming Dance.

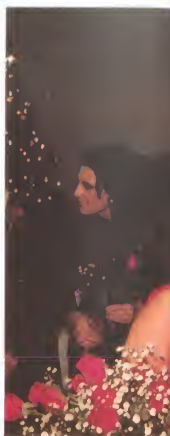

Matt Novak, Jim Raudonis, Rasem Isa, Steve Ziemniak, and Eric Johnson take down a Munster running back as HHS fans watch.

This year's Turnabout Court is as follows: Gina Giovanelli, James Parlor, Amy Govert, Josh Durham, Angela Castillo-Flores, Blair Brown, Phil Dennis, Kristy Lane, Brad Joseph, Jill Petska, Tim Adkins, and Tracy Ziemniak. The King and queen were Blair Brown and Angela Castillo-Flores.

Seniors Vince Vasile, Melissa Mull, and junior Laura Hoolehan get a little softer as they do the "Shout" a song that was a favorite at the dance.

Seniors Kim Vasquez, Randy Horka, and Melissa Howell have a good time dancing the night away to their favorite songs.

Turnabout

Js Js
Traditional?

"This was the best Turnabout I've been to in my past four years here," states senior Kelly Hood.

After months of preparing and hours of primping the door bell finally rings. Awaiting in the freezing cold is your decked out date holding a box of flowers to enhance your perfect outfit.

Madly gathering your things, of course 15 minutes late (ten of which you spent searching for your school i.d.) you dash for the door.

On the way to the car your mind begins to race. Making sure nothing is forgotten and no hair is out of place makes the 20 minute drive to St. George Serbian Hall seem like days. The wait to get tickets and coats checked takes even longer.

Walking through the crowd you notice how well the Lettermen and Letterwomen's Club of Highland High School Athletic Department decorated the hall with this year's colors — red, black, and silver. As flashes are flying from friends everywhere taking pictures and giving compliments, the music begins to play.

After two hours of dancing, your hair is totaled, make-up smeared, and your date missing; it's time for pictures! The new company Prestige worked their hardest to make the memories last in a perfect picture.

Towards the end of the night, everyone begins to calm down, and its time for the court to be announced. Walking out onto the floor, Queen Angela Castillo-Flores and King Blair Brown, along with the rest of the court, wait excitedly for the former king and queen to hand over their crowns.

Traditionally dances are a night when the gentlemen treat the ladies to dinner, but Turnabout is a night when the roles get switched. This brings about the question, is Turnabout traditional or not? In the aspect of life this dance may not follow normal standards, but HHS has made it a tradition anyway.

• Tiffany Wojciechowski

As the last song of the night plays seniors Tim Adkins and Jamie Waldron gaze into each other's eyes, reflecting on their past memories.

HTC Motto

This year's fall musical Carnival started the season for the Highland Theater Company.

Carnival is about a young girl named Lili (Jennie Poe, Carrie Ruhs) who thinks the world is full of laughter and that all the people are kind. She gets a job at Schlegel's Carnival with the puppeteers Paul Berthalet (Brian Vargas) and Jaquette (Carrie Wilson). It's there, where Paul falls in love with Lili but her heart has already been broken by Marco/ Production manager (Dave Blair). At the circus is where she learns not everyone is kind.

Matt Courtright played the role of B.F. Schlegel's, Mary Callaway was Rosalie, and Mr. Adam Baez as Dr. Glass.

And what would be a circus without the side shows? Brad Klemm played the bearded lady, Jeff Hassel as the strong man, Beth Halcarz was the contortionist, and Philip Weis was the aerialist.

Both Sarah Courtright and Carrie Wilson choreographed the dances, while Chantelle Warner, Erin Peterson and others took part in them. Many clowns, gypsies, and harem girls were also seen on stage.

The play, however, would not have been performed without the help of the staff, the stage and scenic crews, the artists, the pit musicians, and also the Highland High teachers who took part in it.

The play was directed by Martin Grubbs with the help of the Assistant Director Sherry VerWay, the Pit Director Victor Pazik and Technical Director Mary Albrecht.

Caring

Dealing With Feelings

During the academic life of a student in high school, many difficulties will be encountered. These learning experiences will require a direct-approach method of resolution. Some obstacles will be surmountable by the hard work of that single student. Others, however, will require the support and caring of friends.

These helpers can be found in abundance in both the staff and the student body. Many electives are offered which stress the knowledge and information surrounding the relationships and feelings of people. Through these classes, students can prepare for any hardships that they may encounter in the non-foreseeable future.

There are other school-based programs. While they are not part of the curriculum, they do teach lessons about ourselves, others, and how we all interact together. With support inside and outside school, all these factors add up to a caring educational family.

Caring

Moods make the world smile or frown

A change in moods is as inevitable as the change of day to night. While it's as certain, it's not quite as regular.

These changes can play nasty tricks on some people because moods control how everyone acts at one time or another. This doesn't mean that everyone is a weak slave to his or her own moods; it just means that moods play a strong part in determining how people act.

Major mood changes occur between and during three distinct time periods. These three segments are the morning, lunch, and the afternoon.

In the morning, most students are in an ex-

It
Starts From
The Heart

tremely irritated mood, and those nagging parents don't really help the situation either. "The last thing I want to hear in the morning is the nagging voice of my mother," says Senior Matt Elder. Half asleep, students roam the halls to get to their classes.

Depending on whether they eat breakfast or not, students start to wonder about lunch during one of the first three periods of the day. Many feel very anxious, a characteristic which is caused by that infamous motivator — hunger. During lunch students satisfy their basic needs: food, water, and gossip. "We like to catch up with each other or just sit and complain about the day's events," laughs Junior Nicole Fuller.

The time after lunch is the most tedious for students. "Fourth hour has to be the hardest hour of the day. It is difficult to sit in a desk and listen to a teacher," says Senior Melanie Wilson. As the afternoon wears on, thoughts drift towards the end of the school day. These thoughts are to students as meat is to dogs. It doesn't necessarily make them drool, but it does get their attention. During the last hour of the day, expectations are raised, and a short freedom is anticipated.

After school lets out, many scramble home to spend some nice quiet time. Others stay at school even longer. Then there are those who go off to their workplaces not so shortly after school. In the end, however, everybody has to face the reality of repetition. These mood cycles happen day to day, and when that new day rolls around, those fantastic moods are on the horizon.

People Need People

Snowflake, IPR teach caring

Highland cares about its students through groups such as Snowflake and Natural Helper.

These groups are meant to teach students more about themselves and about their new friends, and this is done in a variety of ways.

Programs like Snowflake and the related Snowball and even Blizzards in the elementary grades were founded with the idea of keeping young people from addictions such as drinking and drugs, but also to teach valuable people skills that will enable students to "just say no" to any behaviors which are harmful.

One of the main purposes of the Highland High School Guidance Department and in curriculum classes such as IPR is to help people learn how to be the best they can be. This corrects some people's ideas that counselors are only there to guide people into the right colleges.

Today's curriculum and guidance center offer many different programs to students who may be going through difficult times, or who just need to learn how to help themselves and others better. By going through the training of the Natural Helper program and special events like Snowflake, students can learn a great deal about themselves, as well as how to react and respond in positive ways to others.

The Natural Helper program taps into the wealth of human kindness within the HHS student body. Through questionnaires and other means guidance counselors find the students whom others turn to in times of trouble or just for a caring smile. Once these people are identified, they are invited to join the Natural Helper program. After some sensitivity training which also develops communication skills, these people form a nucleus of caring students in all levels and departments of the school. They become some of the strongest helps to all members of the student body, and in the process learn how to develop leadership and the art of being able to truly be there for others.

Highland High School certainly isn't just about learning from books. It's very much about learning from others, and learning more about one's own attitudes, reactions, and capabilities to make a positive difference in the world.

Right, Koula Amanatidis stops to catch her breath after a tiring workout. Her smile and openness portray the attitudes of many students who care and who count among the HHS student body.

Natural Helper had to be one of the best weekends of my life. You get the chance to open up and be yourself without the pressure of the world around you. Friends you make there will last a lifetime because you understand each other better than anyone else.

Sleep, above, plus good friends like Jessica Stanley, Laura Messman, and Amber Kay make things like Snowflake a valuable and precious memory.

Caring

Drop In Center, IPR help students grow

High school is a journey which no student has to make on his own. At Highland High there are plenty of outlets of emotional and academic support for any student that wants to take advantage of them. The Guidance Office and school curriculum give students the option of utilizing them.

The Drop-In Center is a new program that offers counseling by fellow classmates with whom students can easily relate, even more so than staff members. It is run by the Guidance Office and this service is offered during 2nd, 4th, 5th, and 7th hour. One may go during study hall or during class if he or she obtains a pass from a teacher. This is a place students can go for things ranging from getting help with homework to talking about problems they are having.

Classes here at Highland also help to provide a caring atmosphere. Child development, a semester class taught by Mrs. Becky Damasius, covers marriage, pregnancy, and parenthood. The main project of the class is flour babies. They are to be carried around for a specified amount of time, decided on by the teacher. It is to be carried everywhere, to help make it more realistic. The effects of drugs and birth defects are discussed.

Living
Life
By Heart

IPR is another elective class one can opt to take. It covers peoples everyday feelings, values, and how to build up one's self-esteem. Conflict and frustration are discussed and problem solving skills are strengthened. Death and suicide are covered. For one week everyone in the class takes naps. This is to help the students learn relaxation techniques. Each person must also bring a bag of personal items to help the class get to know them better.

Family relations is a semester class taught by Miss Brenda Larsen. It helps to teach the importance of family and of good communication between family members. During the course, each person in the class plans her own wedding.

All of these opportunities help to build a strong backbone for students. They help build better personality traits and make them better people. This should be a reassurance for most individuals. When they go on to the next step in their life, whether it be college or out to work in the real world, they know they will never have to go it alone.

• Sara Harkabus

Even though students are growing, sophomore Korin Bahr still enjoys playing around at a home football game. Guidance counselor Mr. Jerry Hedges explains to junior Carrie Stephens the procedure for the annual PSAT's.

Mrs. Rose Ceperich, the high school registrar and Guidance Secretary, helps out an interested visitor to her office.

During IPR class, Erica Burd, Kristen Brown, and Tina McCartney practice their relaxation techniques.

Drop-In Center helps Jason Tarka and Steve Stasny talk to fellow classmates Jana Solomon and Mile Labus.

Junior guidance office aides Mellisa Salle and Cheryll Scherringa help to look for certain students' schedules.

Our Town: Highland

Learning to Care
For Our Community

In our community there is a sense of togetherness. There are churches, festivals, and other events and places that hold our town together as a community. Certain times throughout the year, Highland Parks and Recreation entertains the community by inviting festivals to come to town, set up parades, and hold plays at Main Square Gazebo.

Main Square is where most of the town's activities are held. The newest of the activities held in Main Square is "The Battle of the Bands". The "Battle of the Bands" consists of some bands throughout the area. These include Alison's Mailbox, Midian, RAIN, Howards Cow, Sweat Leaf, and Dogs of Autumn. It is sponsored by Beat Magazine and headed by Tom Lounges and Kitty Watson. The prizes are a three song demo at Sheffield Studios, band t-shirts, and gift certificates.

During the festivals people set up craft and food booths, there are rides and games for children and adults, and musical entertainment is provided in the gazebo of Main Square.

The parades consist of the Highland sports teams, the Highland High School band, majorettes, cheerleaders, local stores and businesses in Highland, fire and police departments in the area, and also various high school clubs and organizations throughout the area.

The plays are held in the Main Square Gazebo and are open to anyone from any town to audition. They are held in the evening throughout the summer. Members of the community volunteer to provide refreshments for the audience. The plays serve as good entertainment on the warm summer nights.

Smaller activities also held at Main Square include family day in the park with a miniature zoo and pony rides, craft shows, and the burning of trees.

No matter what one's interest, Our Town offers the perfect entertainment.

OUR TOWN

Family Values, Community Interest Spark Care For HHS Student Concerns

Part of belonging to Highland High School involves belonging to the Town of Highland and living in the Northwest corner of Indiana -- The Calumet Region.

Highland students enjoy suburban living while having the shores of Lake Michigan, the city life of Chicago and the surrounding communities of Munster and Griffith to give flavor to daily events.

Family life is important in Highland, with parents often getting involved through booster clubs and behind the scenes of many activities.

Highland students enjoy a great deal of support from local businesses, and also become involved in area concerns, such as the big fire in autumn which destroyed Handy Andy Hardware in Munster.

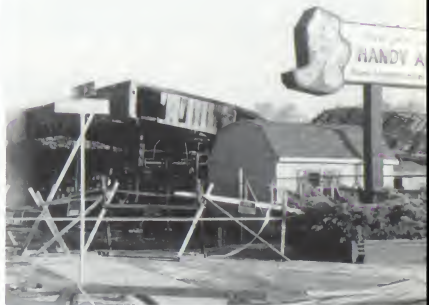

Our Town is an integral part of Northwest Indiana, and family values, with care from the adult community, makes Highland a good place to grow up and go to school.

Students and the Community

Key Club , Mentor, and Operation RESIST

Work to Build a Better Community

The community has a great deal of influence on the students of Highland High School. The students show their involvement in the community through the Mentor program, Operation RESIST, and Key Club.

The Mentor program is only for juniors and seniors. To qualify, the students must be in the top 15% of their class. In the class the students leave school to shadow a professional in their area of interest. Homework, writing to colleges, seeking scholarships, and writing resumes are other things that occupy the students time not with their mentor. The students this year are spending time with engineers, stock brokers, teachers in the elementary school, physicist, an attorney's office, Tri-City mental health, a counselor, W.J.O.B., and at The Times.

The Key Club is a service club for the community and is advised by Mrs. Joan

Ray. Highland's Key Club works along side the Highland Kiwanis, an international as well as a national organization. Key Club services our school, our community, and our district. They help the Kiwanis with any fundraisers and activities throughout the year. This year's activities included: Homecoming, collecting shoes for the homeless, setting up a haunted house for the Park Department Halloween party, the Kiwanis pancake breakfast, a child care for the high school open house, a hayride, and environmental T-shirts.

Operation RESIST is Highland's

gang resistance program. There are meetings every month to ensure the safety and protection of the town against gangs. Among a few faces at one of the RESIST meetings are Ed Klapak, a former student and current student at Purdue University Northwest, Mrs. Corally Mc Cann, head of the Guidance Department, Mrs. Joan Ray, advisor for Key Club, Ms. Barbara Mayer, coordinator of Public Relations for the School Town of Highland, Mr. Michael Backes, a HHS Administrator.

Happiness

*Whatever Happiness may be,
I have yet to feel its warmth.
It could be the young, sprouted flower that reaches for the light or the relief of pain that covers me at night.*

*Whatever Happiness may bring,
I will never know.
Its very breath holds me back
in ways I cannot break.
It shows me no kindness
not where hearts are concerned.
That was just a story,
I never learned.*

*Happiness is distant to so alien a heart.
It hides from the weary and lonely in the dark.
To shield its very meaning as the saplings in the spring.
They shed their very leaves as the cold pulls them in.
They have yet another year to learn,
what Happiness may bring.*

*But I am too fallible.
I will wither soon enough,
and that will only bring
another to take my place,
to learn if Happiness exists
or if it was just all a game.
To test our very senses,
In the wind, cold, and rain.*

Forever Dreams

It seems sometimes we cannot wait until the night arrives.

We long for freedom, we need the peace.

The sky began to darken.

I took my place where dreams become,

I glanced at the stars and instantly

I fell . . . into a dream.

Where I can see the sun forever as if rising,

Where I can be what I am without judgement,

Where everything is an art,

Where nothing is coincidence,

Where everything has meaning,

Where the unknown pain disappears,

Where the pure . . . is

Where the unyielding never need plea and we all believe.

So it's entirety happens quickly

And it's obscurity inspired me to wake . . . into reality.

But I remember my dream and strive for it.

WEEKENDS!

Our Time OUR TEMPO

MARCHING

To Our Own Drum Beat

One thing Highland students are great at is making our own beat and setting our own tempo to life.

Whether it's setting the ground rules for how we will approach school and all its commitments, or how to manage the time between personal sports and jobs, as well as hobbies and family, Highland students create their own tempo, then move through our days and evenings as we make it all come together.

Learning how to march to our own drummer in our own time as we set our own tempo becomes Inevitable!

The Press

*Shield, Link,
J-Class make headlines with creativity using
new computers*

Journalism opens doors to many fields of study. The ability to compose a creative work of art through words has benefited many.

Fortunately, the Journalism Department has climbed an extra step up the ladder. The students of Link and Shield have experienced the hard work and determination that is involved in meeting deadlines and, most important, learning desktop publishing.

"This year was very significant because we did all the computer work on our own, which not only was self-satisfying but I know it pleased Ms. Mayer," states Shield staffer Angela Koleno.

The Link has undergone a change in its paper format. It went from being 11x17 to 9x12, which now makes it easier to fit the newspaper in the yearbook. After all, a yearbook is a creative history book.

The editors of both Shield (Alicia Castillo-Flores) and Link (Jenny Bajda) have helped to motivate their peers.

• Alicia Castillo-Flores

The Link consists of J.Tarka, J. Bajda, J. Chicki, K. Lessner, J. Schullek, J. Solomon, M. Kantowski, M. Dyson, S. Barney, and S. Stasny.

The Shield consists of Selena Cox, Monica Dyson, Kelly Herald, Laura Cichon, Alicia Castillo-Flores, Tiffany Wojciechowski, Sara Harakabus, Anthony Dosado, Stephanie Rodriguez, Anna Landsman, Lynette Dobrowski, Deanna Crum, Paul Callaway, Dana Strange, Marlo Atchinson, Jennifer Schullek, Angela Koleno, and Jeff Chicki.

Acting is the principle behind it all

Highland High School students don't need to be told that there's more to an education than books. Speech II, Drama, and Theatre Company are a few creative alternatives to the same old book work.

Speech II is a class that teaches students about radio and filmmaking. Students learn how a film is put together, and the influence that films and radio have on the world. They also learn to develop their own media skills through radio play and video productions. In this course, a student learns about the parts of a camera and the terms involved in working with it. They write, adapt, tape, and star in their own films.

Drama class is designed to nurture and assist students in developing acting skills. The students work on grounding stage movement and in character development. Frequently, they act out skits and improvisations. This class can not only be fun, but it can better the students' chance at participating in plays and musicals.

The Theatre Company plays a vital role in Highland Theatre productions. The Theatre Company is essential for every detail that contributes to making every performance its very best, including the lighting, sound, and the scenery. They also work in the concessions and advertising.

HTC's hard work paid off in the success of Charlotte's Web. The play was held February 18, 24, and 26. Sarah Hull took the role of Charlotte, Lauren Loscalzo played Martha, and Melissa Bowen as Edith. Brian Vargas played Wilbur, the pig. Erin Lottino and Jason Simpson played the goose and gander, Melanie Wilson and Rachel Sweeney portrayed the sheep and lamb, and Brad Klemm played the rat.

At the same time Charlotte's Web was running, another play called Greater Tuna ran on the alternating nights, February 17, 19, and 25. This play, starring Mary Callaway and Dave Blair, had a total of twenty parts, each person playing ten roles! Mrs. Joyce Petrin was the Director and Shannon Bruce was the Assistant Director.

Highland has many creative learning outlets to offer. Speech II, Drama Theatre, plays and musicals are just a few of the options available. All of the students involved are essential to the collage of students we call Highland High School.

ENTERTAINMENT Mellow Music

Alison's Mailbox played at God Stock this year. The band consists of Steve Stasny, Jason and Jeff Tarka, Paul Callaway, and Bill Mayer.

Ever since Christmas break, a day has not gone by without an "Alison's Mailbox" t-shirt proudly parading the hallways of HHS. The band consists of Paul Callaway, vocals; Jason Tarka, lead guitar; Steve Stasny, rhythm guitar; Jeff Tarka, bass guitar; Bill Mayer, drums. Throughout the past year, this hometown band has grown out of a loyal gathering of basement groupies into a wide spectrum of fans from many area schools and countless adults as well. Alison's Mailbox has become more than a teenage fad — it's become obvious to all who listen that they exhibit sheer talent and musical skill.

"I can't wait to see them on Mtv in a couple of years," remarked senior Katie Schmidt, "Then I can say 'Wow! I know those guys!'" I know that they have the determination to make it big!"

With three senior members graduating, many might wonder what will happen to the group. Do they have what it takes to stick together and achieve their dreams? The track record of these three seniors certainly exhibit a drive towards success. "These guys take other activities seriously. They don't limit themselves just to the band," observes senior Melanie Wilson.

These seniors will be missed not only for their music, but also for their contribution to the school. Steve Stasny was the Senior Class President, Paul Callaway served as Vice President and was captain of the football team and swim teams, and Jason Tarka was active as a Natural Helper and a Drop-In Center counselor.

"I really enjoy their concerts and I really get into their music. People can really relate to them; that's why they are so popular," comments sophomore Jeff Dancho.

The year started off with a memorable show at Main Square during the town's Fall Festival. Hundreds of teens crowded around the gazebo for a unique acoustic set that was followed by a louder electric set. A second favorite was the December 23rd show at the Musician's Guild. With over 400 people in attendance, the hall was packed.

The group's most recent tape was heralded at a tape release party sponsored by Woodmar Records. The 4-song demo includes "Carrot Tops," "Papers," "Feminine Song," and the now well-known "Just Askin'."

A popular question about the band is how they got their name. As the story goes, one day Paul and Jason were driving by their friend Alison Peach's house and nearly collided with her mailbox. Thus was born the catchy ditty.

Some find it difficult to express the power in AM's music of the energy put out at their shows. Senior Nancy Colias put it simply, "Alison's Mailbox rocks my world!"

MUSIC TO OUR EARS

Marching Trojan Pride has successful season

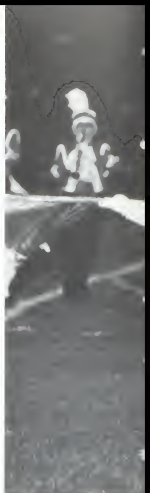

From the buzzing auditoriums to the vibrating football fields, the Highland band always seems to rouse spirit and excitement at almost every school event. The members of the band put in countless hours of practice to prepare for the seemingly endless number of performances to come.

The band is divided into two seasons: the marching season and the concert season. This fall's marching band competed regularly against different bands. This required hours of practice, but it certainly paid off by earning them first place as the Grand Champions. The marching band also performs at football games and parades.

The concert season is in the winter and spring. They perform at seasonal concerts, basketball games, ISSMA, and commencements.

The band is an important aspect of almost every HHS event. It is definitely the music to our ears.

HIGHLAND VOICES
TRAVEL TO DISNEY WORLD

The Highland Choral department had another outstanding year, while exceeding even their own expectations.

The department, under the direction of Victor Pazik, is composed of three choirs: a beginning choir, an advanced girls choir, and a mixed varsity choir.

The varsity and advanced girls choir traveled to Orlando, Florida over Christmas vacation. They worked for months to make their performance at Epcot Center a memorable one.

Many students participated in the ISSMA Solo and Ensemble Competition. Only a talented few made it to the State Competition in Indianapolis.

Five Highland students were involved with The Indiana All State Choir. Mike Filipowicz, Sarah Francis, Jennie Poe, Sarah Stinnet and Carrie Wilson were the students who made it to Indy.

Ending the year, choir puts on a spectacular show called "100 Years of Broadway". All three choirs deserve recognition for their talent, hard work and dedication.

ORCHESTRA

IN THE SPOTLIGHT FROM ISSMA TO THEATRE

The Highland orchestra had another magnificent year. With their director, Ms. Karen Schafer, leading them on, they played their way through many sensational performances and competitions.

The orchestra is one of the many school activities that requires more than just an hour of work a day. Many of the students involved consider orchestra as not only a class, but as a major part of their lives, and for a number of students, an important element in their futures.

The Highland orchestra played their seasonal programs, and they competed in the ISSMA ensemble contest. Individually, orchestra students competed in the ISSMA solo competition. A few high-ranking students went on to the state competition. The orchestra was involved in the music for the Highland Theatre Productions. They are also responsible for setting the mood during commencements.

The orchestra is a challenging and rewarding class. Each member contributes everything they have to the Highland orchestra. Every member deserves a great amount of recognition for all the time and effort it gives to Highland High School.

Governing Well

Leadership demands
special skills & drive

Whether in a Government class, Student Council, or a job, Government affects us all in one way or another.

It is important to know how our government works in order to get involved and have an active role.

When a person turns eighteen, there comes the role of voting. There are a lot of responsibilities that go along with this process -- learning what candidates stand for.

Voting basically means electing a person as a representative for the people.

Doing your part by voting is important because this person should be keeping the best interests of all in mind.

*It takes

Being involved in Student Council greatly helps in obtaining leadership skills. This also helps one to understand and relate to the U.S. Government and the way it runs.

Government classes teach students how our government came to be. It also teaches what the Constitution is made up of and the conditions it sets.

People can learn the effect the Constitution serves in all of our lives and how important it is to abide by the rules it sets.

•Dana Strange, Sara Harkabus

Learning How Others Led Makes Better Leaders of Us

Whether it is meeting new people, improving the school, learning the laws of our country, or finding new ways to conserve money, students are constantly experiencing new tactics to help them become acquainted with economics and government.

Even though some of us don't realize it, our school has a government where various students provide the necessary basics needed for the real world.

Economics classes taught by Mr. Gene Kelly and Mr. Mike Sunny teach Highland pupils how different businesses interact, the flow of money, taxes, unions, and how they are organized. When students go into the real world these lessons will be widely used.

Highland High School's Student Council is made up of class representatives and interclub representatives. Student Council furnishes its members with many outlooks. "The main purpose of Student Council is to promote school spirit through activities," says Mr. Kaminski. "Most important, it is to teach the leadership to govern themselves,

The spaghetti dinner was the most successful ever this year, benefiting a Highland family.

which is valuable to them throughout their lives."

Student Council emphasizes social action and provides services to those in need.

"Our goal for this year was to raise a good deal of money for Warren School fifth grade student Tim Porre at the Spaghetti Dinner. Tim and his family were the recipients of the 1995 Student Council Spaghetti Dinner", says Valerie Rieckhoff, student council corresponding secretary.

"Sadly Tim passed away on December 16, 1994 because of a brain tumor."

Government classes taught by Mr. Greg Petrin present a fun way to learn about our country.

"Mr. Petrin is never in a bad mood, and teaches our class with humor", says senior Dana Strange.

The infamous "Market Street" filmstrips in Mr. Kelly's Economics class show students how economy is tied to the real world.

With such a structured knowledge of government, economics, and hands-on social aid activities, it would seem students would possess the definite requirements to face the demands of voting and surviving in the world today.

Hi Tech

The Future

The futuristic world in which we live is filled with many technological advancements. However, mankind never stands still in its endeavors to better itself and the quality of life on this planet we call Earth.

Through the research and development of various scientists and engineers, many advancements have been made over the decades. From fuel-injected automobile engines to non-stick frying pans, these discoveries have been cultivated to provide the best way of life possible. While many of these betterments do not directly affect the teens of the high school, some do; which, for the most part, are concerned with entertainment.

Our assimilation of the new technologies of the decade is also a very important step towards our crucial adaption to the real world and the real life. So, while technology is great for having a good time, we must not lose sight of the big picture: To reach our lofty goals, we must remove all the boundaries in our imagination.

Hi-Tech

the future is coming in with the next tide*

In the old days, things were different, and life wasn't as easy as it is today.

Many modern inventions have helped us to bear the stresses of everyday life in convenient and relaxing ways. Some of these miracle devices facilitate our work, while others expedite our play.

Probably the greatest of the technological developments of man during this age is virtual reality. While immersed in the fantastically surreal world of a computer system, the body reacts as if it were in the real one. One of the hottest virtual spots in this region is at North Pier Shopping Mall in Chicago. This place has it all, from robotic warfare simulators to a computerized version of gun-tag.

Another realm of progress is that of communication. Some various methods of connecting include the cellular phone, allowing us to call our friends and the great information super-highway, where those of us endowed with computers and modems can talk to other people across the nation and around the world.

There are so many advancements in the world today that they all can't possibly be covered in this space. Every single machine or tool that we use today was technologically advanced at some time. Keep that in mind the next time you stare at one of those Magic Eye posters; they're hi-tech, too.

New & Improved

This year, Highland was reborn into an institution of greater education. The renovation process has had dramatic affects on the students and the teaching process. The students have much to say on this matter . . .

"I've noticed the change in students' behavior since the school's renovation. A lot of them are taking advantage of the new facilities, but most have no respect," says senior Tanya Hasselbring.

"The Commons area was a great idea. I've heard stories about the 'forbidden benches'; I don't feel as intimidated by the upper classmen as I thought," says freshman Tiffany Wojno.

"I've seen the whole renovation process. It seemed strange to watch them tear the school apart. I can barely remember how things were before," remembers Kristy Lane, a senior.

"I have worked on the new computers, and it seems unreal that they can do so many things," says Angela Kolenko, a junior.

"We all have more opportunities now. There are new programs set up that could not have happened without new facilities," says junior Matt Havens.

Elements and Equations

A Part Of Everyday Life

At least once in your lifetime you have asked the question, "When am I going to use math or science in my life?"

There are times when math can be very helpful to you, such as, when you are at the mall and see a sale, but do not know how much 20% off is. But at times, math can also be very painful. When you are stepping on the scale and notice those extra pounds, or when you add some inches to your waistline.

What are some of your favorite things to do at home? Are they talking on the phone or watching t.v.? If it wasn't for science you would not have the opportunity to reach out and touch someone, or turn on the tube to watch a Brady Bunch rerun.

The next time you find yourself asking the question, "When am I going to use math and science in my life?" Try answering the question, "When am I not going to use math or science in my life?"

MATH and SCIENCE

Math and science are just pieces of one big puzzle of things one needs to learn as they go through life. Both courses help provide a strong background which can lead to bigger and better things. Only two years of both of these subjects are required but a basic knowledge, especially of mathematics, is necessary to survive in the real world. Math and science are not necessarily the most interesting of classes. With the right attitude, however, one can be amazed at how much he or she can accomplish. Labs in science help give students hands-on experience and videos like the famous "giving birth" video Mr. Johnson shows in his Biology class. But the most important piece of the elements and equations puzzle is the teacher. A good teacher can make all the difference, if they have a unique way of teaching, it can make even the most boring subject seem exciting.

Mind & Body

Psychosomatic is a real word

School has a lot of emphasis put on the mind and learning, yet things are difficult for any individual if the body is not working properly. There are many aspects of physical health which are part of Highland High School's curriculum and day.

From trying to eat a balanced and healthy meal in the school cafeteria to getting enough exercise not only in gym class, but in simply transversing the school several times a day, there is much offered to help physical health.

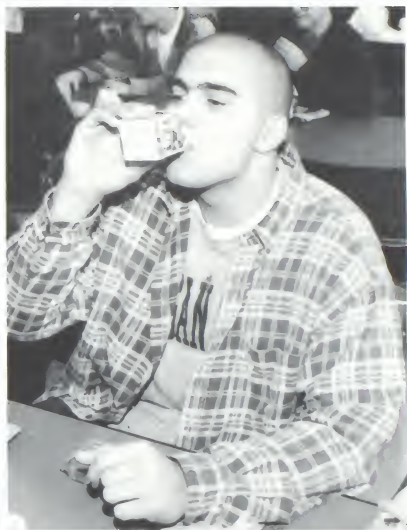

There are some who, after walking from one end of the building to the middle school wing say, "Moving

the body

mind and the spirit,
many things just don't

through this school is its own cardiovascular workout!"

Also part of physical health in the school are all the extra-curricular sports, which give students opportunity not only to learn physical skills, but get good exercise and learn teamwork as well.

While there are many ways of learning during the school day, many of those aspects have much to do with keeping physically healthy and strong, and also learning how the body is going to work as teens draw ever closer to the years of adulthood and what they hold.

Football Player Jim Raudonis needs some liquid during a brutal home game against Bishop Noll. Above, tons of body language abounds.

aintaining a healthy life style is conducive to good health. There are several things offered by Highland High School which can help to maintain this healthy way of life.

For those not-so-healthy moments, we can always turn to the nurse. For anything from an injury in gym class to a bad class of the flu, the nurse's office is the place to go. It offers medicines, sympathy, and some say a few of the most comfortable beds around.

Gym class. For some, these two words bring to mind visions of hours of fatigue and pain. For others, they bring to mind a perfect way to release bottled-up energy.

An advanced Physical Education class, weights is the perfect class for you if strength is the element which you would like to gain. It gives you a chance to test personal abilities and to set goals for yourself to achieve.

Feel the burn! This is a common phrase heard among students who choose to add aerobics to their class curriculum. Aerobics, including step aerobics, is a perfect way for students to exercise if they don't have time to do it out of school.

All of these classes help students stay fit while simultaneously having fun. The benefits of taking these classes are endless, even if you aren't often motivated to get off of the couch. Not only do these courses give you the ability to get fit and stay fit; they can also make you feel like a whole new person.

Let's Be Practical!

*From Home Ec
To Building Homes*

The major incentive in going to high school is the fact that each day helps prepare us for our future. Some classes make us wonder how we will use them toward our futures. Some classes just seem more practical than others.

Not every student plans on furthering their education beyond High School. Some may want to stay at home, and being a homemaker requires numerous skills, many of which are not instinct, but which have to be learned. For these students Highland offers classes like Child Development, Foods, and Consumer Education that will be useful in organizing a household. Those who may consider going to work directly after high school can choose from courses such as Keyboarding, Drafting, or Computer Literacy.

Courses in Home Economics and Business can be useful for students who plan on continuing their schooling also, they may learn how to balance a home and a career or they may acquire business skills to use in their futures, or to fall back on. Life has a lot to offer, and this proves, that so does School.

Business Classes prepare For Hi-Tech future of commerce

Sometimes it's hard to wake up every morning at the same time, to go to the same place, with the same people. The only thought that keeps us going is that we are preparing ourselves for our future, and that all of this work will pay off. However in some cases, this is not apparent. We are not always sure of how learning how to calculate the area of a rhombus will help, but we do know that some classes are sure to pay off.

We are given the opportunity of learning some basic accounting skills in Accounting I-IV students can learn about partnership, terminology, and accounting procedures. There are also courses dealing strictly with business, like Business Law, Intro to Business, and Business Management. In these classes, students are taught their legal rights, and their role as consumers. There are many classes that can prove helpful in an office, including Office Procedures, Computer Literacy, Word Processing and Keyboarding.

As long as highland continues to offer these courses, we may continue to wake up every morning, at the same time...

WAKE-UP

If you're not a morning person, and are sick of Saturday Class, or ever have a fight with your alarm clock before school then here are ten easy steps to take off the time:

1. Shower the night before.
2. Don't shave -- go stubbly.
3. Gargle -- don't brush.
4. Go for the comfortable look--skip the nylons.
5. Throw on anything from the floor --that's not too wrinkled.
6. Have juice for breakfast -- perferably O.J.
7. Leave your shoes by the door -- no laces required.
8. Leave your books in car -- mandatory study hall.
9. Do make-up on the way to school-- skip the eyeliner.
10. Stop signs with white border are optional.

No Hats. . . No Gum. . . No Bathrooms. . .

What's next? Cameras? Along with a physical renovation Highland has also had some major mental changes. The administration is getting tougher and many new rules are starting to appear.

A new way of dealing with students who don't abide by the rules is to issue a Saturday Class. This is a three hour study period that begins at eight o'clock, with no sleeping, no talking, no fun!!!!!!

One new rule that was installed with the carpet was NO GUM CHEWING. Gum getting stuck in the carpet has become a problem for the custodians, so any student caught with gum is usually referred for Saturday class.

Highland's tardy policy doesn't tolerate any slackers, either. A "three strikes you're out" policy is in effect. After three times being late to one class, a Saturday class is issued.

Highland is becoming known for its tough policies. But what is most important is that Highland is also becoming known for its well-mannered and mature student body.

See no evil, hear no evil, speak no evil: some rules journalism people live by.

Generation X

They say that we're wild and out of control.

We're not the "Baby Boomers" or the "Hippies", so what are we? Generation X - nice name, don't you think? Our generation does have its own special personality, though. "Grunge", "alternative", and "hip-hop" are just a few of the styles that we have gone through. Our styles show in the music we listen to, our clothes, and our actions.

"All young people cannot be stereotyped based on thier appearance," says senior Anthony Dosado, "We are different. Just as every generation is to each other.

Other generations seem to look down on us. They say that we don't put our two-cents in towards our society. Junior Mike

Koby states, "Our generation might be too diverse to be placed in a single catagory. Generation X has to deal with serious problems such as teenage pregnancy, AIDS, suicide, and many others."

The 90's are a difficult time to live. If the people of past generations were in our time, they would be struggling just as much as we are, if not more.

Although we may seem loud and obnoxious, all we want is to be heard.

How Romantic Could It Be?

- A day Bear's game, then a romantic picnic in the park at Chicago.
- A candle-light dinner at home with romantic music and flowers.
- Dinner at Alexander's, dancing for two on the pier at Meadow's Park and a single rose to end the night.
- A trip to the zoo, followed by a picnic lunch with a stop at the gift shop on the way out, to buy a pair of stuffed love birds.
- Spend the day hiking at the Dunes, stop and watch the sunset. Then end the evening roasting marshmallows by a fire.
- Spending the day hanging out watching the football game or whatever is on T.V. And after a homemade dinner, taking a walk to Dairy Queen for some dessert.
- Taking a midnight drive in a convertible with the top down, the wind in your hair and a full moon in the sky.
- Take a vacation to Bahamas over spring break with your favorite sweetheart watching the sunset over the ocean.

Something ... to blush about.

Some of the most embarrassing moments ever.

• I was walking, well running, out to the bus with one of my friends. It was the beginning of spring, so the ice had turned to slippery mud and slush, and I slipped and fell into a huge puddle. When I got on the bus everyone was laughing at me.

• I was trying to impress this girl, so she would go out with me. I got a pair of crutches and went to visit her at work. When I got to the door, my foot got caught and I fell and dislocated my shoulder. The restaurant had to call an ambulance and she ended up going to the hospital with me. We've been together ever since.

• I was at Baker's Square with my best friend. We were sitting in a booth with a group of gorgeous guys behind us. The waitress brought our food, along with a bottle of ketchup. I assumed the lid would be tight, so I started shaking the bottle. The lid flew off the bottle and soared across the restaurant and practically the entire bottle of ketchup spilt all over the guys behind us.

• I was walking down the stairs by the history hallway with my boyfriend. I took a really big step, missed the stair and fell the rest of the way down, taking him with me. I was just laying there, with my books everywhere, and all he could do was laugh.

HHS Food

It makes ya' feel good.

One factor of school life that remains the same from day to day is the sustenance which fuels the students.

Any student in this institution can choose from three options. One can brown-bag it and plan out their lunch at home.

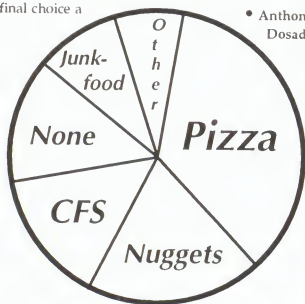

The second set of pupils will go straight to the notorious ala-carte line, also known as the junk food line. Along with all that glorious mouth-rot is offered some healthier choices of food including diet beverages, bottled water, and suprisingly well-flavored rice cakes.

The third and final choice a student can opt for at HHS is the old, trusted friend, the hot-lunch line. Day to day, the menu fortells what stomach-treasure will be made available to the student body in each of the three lunches. These rewards are varied delicacies ranging from the coveted pizza to the totally unknown cheesy, meaty stuff.

Shown in the following graph are some of the top food choices as surveyed among a select body of students in Study Hall. Please note that these are rough estimations but keep it in mind the next time the big lunch-decision has to be made.

"I'm fat, lazy, out of shape, tired, and bored." The number of times these thoughts pass through the minds of students are uncountable.

Students may not realize that the simple things like taking a test or even vacuuming the house are burning calories. Not that vegging out with a bag of chips, watching talk shows everyday after school will tone muscles, but little things can be considered calorie burners and can even be fun.

Roller blading seems to be a new fad cruising through Highland. "The most exercise I ever got before I bought my roller blades was from my remote control," says senior Kelly Herald. Skating is a great form of exercise. It's a lot of fun and the soreness doesn't set in until the wheels have stopped.

Many students rely on school activities to keep them in shape. "Before the season starts, lifting food from my plate to my mouth is a work out for me," says wrestler Vince Vasile. School sports help students stay involved and the competition makes it exciting.

Some students not only use their energy for outside school teams, but there are also classes that can be added to a student's daily schedule such as aerobics, weights, or the freshman's favorite P.E..

"Feel the burn, force reps" is a famous saying from Coach Hanson during his weight program. If the workouts in these classes are done properly students start to notice the difference, not only physically but mentally students get more prepared.

If students realize how much exercise can do for them, the commonly used excuse "I'll start tomorrow" can be forgotten.

History Repeats

*And the future
remains the best*

With learning from books there also grows the greater learning one receives from teachers, and from being part of the real world.

In HHS Social Studies classes there is history to be understood -- much of it so it cannot be repeated again. There are lessons of economic soundness, care for one's fellow man, and the workings of what is still the greatest form of government in the world. There is the promise of having the vote and choosing the leaders who will take us through the years and the century ahead.

Through classes taught in Social Studies classes students can reach back into the past to gain perspective, then try to turn their own thoughts, visions, and ambitions into a future which holds the promise and the possibility of always being better.

That is the beauty of history and government. Nothing is finished but the past; the future remains the brightest thing any student can approach with the knowledge he or she has learned.

At HHS there are excellent teachers, and students who can touch the worth of the past as they reach into the possibilities their own tomorrows can hold.

That is Social Studies — nothing more nor less than a greatness which can still be.

Social Studies

Students Learn the Tricks of Society

One of the major course categories available at Highland High School is Social Studies. This selection of classes consists of mandatory courses as well as electives. The range of choices is quite wonderful.

Economics and Applied Economics are two required courses exploring the world of trading, investment, and money. What better place to learn money-skills of the future than at HHS.

Two science oriented social classes are the complementary pair of Psychology and Sociology. Here students unlock the secrets of the mind and the complications of society. They also take tests under the watchful eyes of trolls.

Studies about the United States, the other side of the globe, and all places in between take place in World Geography. Learn the capitals and important cities, and later, play the infamous map game.

Everyone's old favorite, History, remains. In this study we learn of our past triumphs and mistakes and look toward the future. We'll be prepared with the knowledge we learn in Social Studies.

Nation Appalled As Terrorism Hits Home

*"I just looked

Eddie Smith

As 1994 drew to a close, most of the country was talking about the young mother in the South who had first stated her two young sons were abducted by a kidnaper, only to admit later that she herself had killed them by letting them drown in the family car.

The country was horrified.
How could a mother do such a thing to her own children?

Then 1995 came, and with it a new horror — how could a country's own citizens turn on their government and kill innocent men, women and children in an insane protest against government decisions?

1995 was a sobering time for America, and for Highland. As views of the carnage and destruction of lives and families in Oklahoma City flowed day after day on television sets, many discussions were held in classes, and students took time to consider what had happened.

With the country suddenly aware of militant groups who train with attack weapons and a second look at those who feel free to criticize everyone and everything through the air waves, Highland and the country began to wonder what was happening.

In 1995 the country and Highland came of age, wondering where the hate came from. Then good things began to happen.

Baseball begs, Jordan returns, & O.J. waits

Baseball made news in '94-'95. In 1994 the grand old pastime turned into a brand new greed fest, and when players finally agreed to play under the same terms in late spring of '95, many fans chose to stay away, even from home openers for the White Sox and Cubs. Somehow something had changed, and fans were voting with their feet.

The O.J. Simpson trial droned on, with half the original jurors gone by May. CNN carried every moment, but when many began to feel this was not the finest hour for justice and the workings of court trials, remotes started seeking out other fare. As the yearbook went to press, the prosecution had still not finished presenting its case, and the fear that more jurors would go left a mistrial or hung jury definite possibilities.

Nature made its presence felt this year, from floods in California and the South to changes in weather patterns. Highland again had an extremely warm winter, with few big snowfalls. The fall was like summer, and the spring was like winter. Strange.

On the entertainment scene, The Lion King and Brad Pitts were audience favorites, and tastes in music moved from hard rock to more mellow kinds of tunes made by such groups as Huey and the Blowfish.

Michael Jackson, the Prince of Pop, married Lisa Marie Presley, daughter of the King of Rock and Roll. While skeptics wondered how long the marriage would last, the couple stayed out of the public eye and wondered if they should keep living in Neverland. Reports were that Graceland was not happy.

Another Michael — Jordan, returned from retirement to the Chicago Bulls, and once again fans had more reason to watch the NBA. Talk of a "Four Peat" bounced off the new United Center, where the Bulls played.

WORDS ...

*Reading and Writing
Writing and Reading*

English has been called one of the hardest languages in the world to learn. People taking some of the languages here at Highland might disagree. While many people born in the U.S. may feel that the English language is "a piece of cake" they have to remember that with all of the slang and double-meaning words, someone coming from another country might be in big trouble. Say for example that you were talking to someone about an experience such as a school play coming up and you were to say to that person, "Break a leg." If a person that doesn't understand English very well happened to overhear, that person might take this in a very negative way when what they really mean is to wish that particular person good luck. So the next time you are sitting in your French, German, Japanese, or Spanish class complaining about how hard you have it, take another look and realize how lucky you really are.

In Other Words...

There is more to say!

When taking a foreign language, one soon comes to realize that it is not just another class.

This year the Twelfth Annual International Dinner was held this year. It is a dinner to which all foreign language students are invited and at which select students are initiated into the Foreign Language National Honor Societies.

The entertainment at the Foreign Language Dinner was provided this year by Mrs. Lopez and her Spanish IV class. They sang the song "Maria Isabella"; a song about the approach of the spring season.

*In Other

C'est À Dire...

*En Otras

*Mit Anderen

*Hoka Ho

There are also many extra activities offered to students in a foreign language throughout the year. Such as the various programs which can help a student who aspires to study abroad. Many students take advantage of this opportunity. Also offered, is a trip to France, Mexico, and Germany with a group of teachers and fellow students.

If a learning experience is what you are looking for, foreign language is the way to go.

Honor Societies, Clubs And More!

Like Foreign Language classes, the clubs of each of the languages teach their culture in several ways. For instance, some of the members of the Spanish Club performed a traditional Spanish dance at the at the Foreign Language International Dinner. German Club celebrated Karneval, the German equivalent of Mardi Gras. The French Club went to several French plays to experience what the French culture is like.

Foreign Language Week consists of games, movies and a cultural experience day. On the game day, all the different languages come together to play Jeopardy or Wheel of Fortune. There is also a day the class plays a chosen game in their own classroom. The game is spoken in the language they are studying. The movies shown to the students are about their specific culture. The cultural experience day is the one day of the week in which each student is expected to bring a food item to class. The food item is a specific dish from the culture in which they are studying.

Whether studying German, Spanish, French, or Japanese—each culture provides a far from the norm.

THE VARIETY
ALS MAKE
UNIQUE

Highland High School has been given a countless number of personalities with interests that range from sports and music to friends and academics. Thanks to all of these students with all of their variety, Highland may never have a dull moment.

Looking around the hallways it is hard to believe that each and every person has a life outside of textbooks and bells. Each individual student has creativity, talent, abilities, and disabilities. Everyone around us has their own thoughts and concerns and has been blessed with happiness and cursed with pain. It is unfortunate that we don't have time to get to know every person in our school, for everyone has a special quality, and something valuable to offer.

•Stephanie Rodriguez

What It Takes To Be An Individual Taking Life To The Fullest

Highland High has a variety of people with different cultures, different experiences, different interests, and different lifestyles. And every one of these students has his or her own set of friends--But not everyone has discovered one of the most important things a teenager can possess--individuality.

High school is a time to make friends, to learn how you are like others and how you are different. It is a time to figure out who you are, what you do well, and what you want to do in the future. It is a time to find yourself. After all, there will be a time when you will be in a new place with completely different people around you and you will have to fend for yourself.

Individuality is one way to honestly express yourself. There is only one you. Displaying your individuality is a valuable and unique thing that a person can contribute to the rest of the world.

• Jenni Schullek

Jeff Smigla, Jason Novak Heather Kaczmarek, Tonya Hasselbring, Brandi Cowgill, Liane Ellis, Denise VanDeel, and Matt Novak show that no matter what they are doing, Highland students always set themselves apart by their expressions. Pictures by Callaway, Chicki, and Prestige.

BEHIND THE SCENES

School Town Administrators, Principals Keep Education On The Fast Track

Dr. Renner Ventling served the school again this year as principal, helped by Assistant Principals Mrs. Barbara Merrill and Mr. Michael Backes.

Behind the scenes of any school or any school corporation are the people who make decisions that either advance education or keep it in mediocrity.

Highland is blessed with forward-looking leadership both in the Central Office and in the schools. Dr. Philip Cartwright leads the Administrative Team of Assistant Superintendent Dr. Dennis Shawver, Mrs. Judy DeMuth, Director of Personnel/Labor Relations, and Director of Special Services Mr. Michael Boskovich. Both Mrs. DeMuth and Mr. Boskovich worked previously in the high school.

The School Board this year featured Mr. Harry Ranney, Mr. Konnie Kuiper, Mrs. Judi Bell, Mr. Larry Vassar and Mr. Thurman Ferree. Their leadership led to a strong stance against drugs in the dog search and to advances with dual credit with Purdue and Indiana Universities.

Dr. Renner Ventling led the high school, with Mrs. Barbara Merrill and Mr. Michael Backes as part of his administration team. There was a strong emphasis on learning and spirit this year, from the sectional to strong student involvement.

With strong support personnel in the central office and high school, the year saw many positive changes to Highland education.

They Make Real Learning Happen

In a year when the national media and other groups continued to question the quality of public education, the Highland High School faculty continued to show the strength of its commitment and skill developed through years of teaching.

With the teaching profession there are always many frustrations and challenges. Some say students today don't want to learn as intently as other generations have. Some say there is no motivation and there is little desire to excel.

Highland's teachers have learned to tap whatever pools of desire for learning there are, and many have turned their students into productive people with winning attitudes and a strong work ethic.

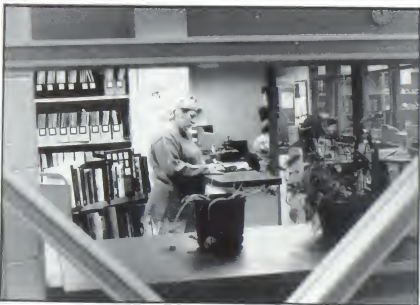

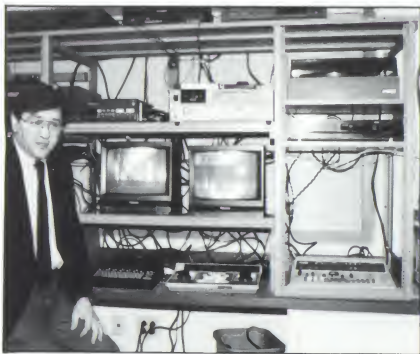

From the success of Science Olympiad to the large numbers on the A honor roll in in Highland honor societies, these students have given their teachers the greatest compliment — they have taken the challenge of a good teacher and made something of themselves.

To those who can and who teach, much credit is given. From the many teachers who have been at Highland a long time, to the new teachers who have recently come into the profession, there remains the desire to share what one knows and to light fires which can burn far into the future of others' lives.

That's a noble profession.

That's what Highland teachers are all about.

SUPER STAFF

THE TEAM THAT WORKS

As with any well-run organization, it takes many people working behind the scenes to make sure the work gets done, and the many little things which need to happen during the day are taken care of.

Highland High School boasts a strong secretarial and support staff, as well as members of the Northwest Indiana Special Education Cooperative who assist students attending Highland classes.

From helping those with disabilities to the mentally and emotionally challenged, the total staff of Highland provides a great deal of assistance to each individual student and his or her needs.

Athletic Department secretary Mrs. Judy Sorota checks scheduling with cheerleader Monica Dyson.

Athletic secretary Mrs. Judy Sorota helps the Athletic Department scheduling run smoothly, while Mrs. Marily Kuiper serves as secretary to Principal Dr. Renner Ventling. Mrs. Elizabeth Reyes is the front office receptionist and secretary.

From those who wash towels and keep the building clean and safe, to those who do carpenter, plumbing, painting and electrical work, the Highland team works together.

All members of the staff — administrators, teachers, secretaries and various support personnel are all charged with the same work — to help each student in Highland High school become his or her very best.

Seniors Class Of 1995

Seniors Casey Sosnowski, Sasha Vukas, Kristian Hanson, Noah Kosteba, and Todd Trivunovic hang out in the new commons area after lunch.

"Senior year was really fun! But it's also kind of sad because you are going off to college and leaving all of your friends behind. "

Sara Harkabus

Graduation

Many seniors are now 18 and are considered legal adults. How will these new adults handle their new freedoms?

Gradually parents are realizing their child is not a child anymore. Their children are now paying taxes, learning how to handle their own money, and voting. Not to mention out on their own, making their own decisions and leading their own life.

Learning how to handle their own money may be the toughest task of all because it prepares students for when they move out on their own and have to live on their own budget, not provided by mom and dad.

Voting is another big step to growing up. It is a very big decision, and it should not be taken lightly. Much thinking is required that many of us have not had to face before.

There are many tough decisions to be made in every day living. Taking one step at a time to learn and absorb is one of the tricks to survival. Adulthood does come.

♦ Marlo Atchison

Every day lunch conversations take place between seniors, Wendy Kish, Kim Modjeski, and a group of friends. After students finish their lunch they head over to 'the commons'.

Thinking About The Final Decisions Before College

Senior year — What an experience! This is the year when most people really begin to grow up! They turn 18, start to apply to colleges, and live in the real world shortly after graduation.

There are many good sides to reaching senior year.

Some seniors will get later curfews, while others may even get their own cars. This is also the time to spread one's wings and enjoy life. It's the last Homecoming, the last Turnabout, the last Prom, and eventually the last report card!

Of course, along with the fun come many new responsibilities. This is the year seniors become young adults in the eyes of many. They no longer have their parents to protect them from the world, and they are expected to be able to hold their own in jobs, clubs, and other parts of the adult community.

A good majority of seniors will be going to college next year, either locally or to campuses. In order to do that, preparations must be made. These might include working to get the best SAT scores, college applications by the score, working to parents to fill out Financial Aid Forms, and working through senior year grading periods to report one's Grade Point Average.

This is the last year of high school, and seniors need to step up to accepting responsibilities, take claim to the results of actions, and also manage to enjoy these good times of life. These are days when one may spend more time with friends and family. We never know what will happen after graduation, with people leaving for school, going to work in other parts of the state and country, and some even getting married.

It's our year and our time!

Thinking About The Choices To Roads To Success

Varsity cheerleaders, Melissa Zimmerman and Anne Zygmunt were both invited to travel to London during the holidays to cheer.

Senior year has finally come to an end! You receive a diploma that carries the name of Highland High School on it, and then say all those goodbyes to friends.

You find yourself faced with the inevitable situation of life after high school that scores of young people have faced before you. Suddenly you are not in class every day, but neither are you given a set of things which must be done and which keep you in some kind of schedule. You are on your own!

Will you trudge on full speed ahead, or decide to take a long awaited, and much needed vacation?

"College is definitely my next step in life. I play to go to IU and continue my education," says Senior Jill Bogusz. "I hope to have a good career waiting for me."

Most seniors will continue their education to obtain a good paying job in the future. Senior Justin Steiner says, "College will determine if I can afford what I want in life."

However, college isn't the only path available. Some people believe a vacation should follow. Senior Kristie Lesczynski states, "After I graduate, I hope to take a break from school and just relax."

Others have decided to join the Armed Forces. Senior Matt Novak says, "Instead of going to college first, I've decided to go into the Air Force. I think it will give me more opportunities in life, and they will even pay for my education." There are many options for life after high school. It all depends on that person in the mirror, and what he or she wants to do with a piece of paper called a diploma.

The moment we've been waiting for has finally arrived for everyone in our class. Senior Year! We're at the top. It's our turn to rule the school.

Coming closer to the end, we begin to remember the little things that made us who we are as the Class of '95. "We've grown and matured together. We're all so close — it's like a big family," says senior Mandy Butcher. "Everyone has made so many changes, not only in school, but also in social reforms."

"Interest in school activities changes as you get older. Things aren't as exciting now," says Melissa Mull. Freshman year the games and dances were full of new faces, excitement, and confusion.

As sophomore year rolled around we all started to fit in, and games and dances became our normal Friday nights. Except this year, our parents were not waiting in the circle drive to pick us up. We had control of the wheels; the jingle of the keys in our pockets meant the freedom to come and go on our own.

"The best memory I have of football games is the Battle of the Bridge," says Jason Novak. "We might have crept up to the bridge during our freshman year, but as seniors we stomped above to conquer."

As long as seniors are concerned, school spirit is high and the effort to show it can definitely be seen.

The Class of '85 proved this by its Homecoming float, crushing all competition in the Superstars events, and giving one of the most memorable proms ever to other classes in the school.

Thinking About All The New Responsibilities Of A Senior

Senior year. Responsibilities. The two phrases definitely go together.

There is so much to do in the nine short months until graduation. Applying for colleges and financial aid, looking for scholarships and choosing a school are only two of the tasks. Seniors are trying to keep grades up while most people have a bad case of senioritis setting in. For some seniors, senioritis set in way back in an earlier year of school.

Along with all this, seniors have the task of keeping up with the usual daily routine, including jobs and extracurricular activities like sports and clubs. On top of this, seniors still have to eat, sleep, attend classes, and do homework. There is also the constant thought of what exactly one is planning to do with his or her life.

There are some easy ways to get organized. Make sure to take on only as much as you can handle without letting grades suffer. Get a daily planner to help keep track of all the things you have to do and where you have to be at a certain time. Also, make sure to do things in some kind of order. Apply to choice colleges as soon as possible. This can usually get the housing choice that you want once you make it down to campus.

For those staying at home to attend college or trade schools locally, there are also many arrangements and balancing of class and part time jobs to arrange.

The sooner things get done the better. This way no deadlines are missed. Life is much more fun when deadlines aren't hanging over one's head.

Just do the best you can so when graduation comes, you can just relax and enjoy it!

Thinking About Memories New And Old

As we think back on our high school years, we wonder where the time has gone. Since freshman year we have seen seniors graduate, leaving us one step closer to that glorious day—Graduation!

Freshman year was full of wonder and high expectations. We were trying to find our place among our peers. By sophomore year, we knew more and were more mature, yet we were still unsure of ourselves. Then in junior year, we got drivers licenses and gave a Prom. We knew where we were headed and set bigger and better goals. Still, senior year laid ahead.

We are older and wiser, looking onward toward graduation. Anticipation and sadness come over us, but still we look forward to college. Each year a stepping stone, getting us ready for college, then life full of responsibilities.

For some it is a time of sadness and loss. Others want to get out to see the world. The only thing certain is that we should make our mark. High school may be ending, but our futures are just beginning. Our futures are uncertain, but they are what we make of them.

JUNIORS! Third Time Around!

Junior year — the lowest level of the upperclassmen.

Finally we have climbed the top ranks of our school. To most of us it stands for a lot of responsibilities. New things start to come our way that we must overcome.

We are looking to the future as we take many advanced placement classes, PSAT, and prepare for the ever awaited SAT's. Also, junior year is a time when many of us begin to think more seriously about certain things such as school in general, college possibilities, jobs, careers, family, relationships.

Juniors are of in the middle of everything, too old to be bossed around, too young to rule the school, yet they pretty much know how to handle themselves in any situation that comes up.

Another plus of being a junior is now we can look back and reminisce about underclassmen years, remembering all the times we came across a new situation and weren't sure what to do.

Perhaps the best thing of being "just a junior" is that we don't have the hectic life of a senior, we just sit back and anticipate the thrill of graduation!

It's Getting Closer! The Future Lies Ahead

We're almost there. Our high school career began as freshman who were just taking the big step up to our high school life. Now we're about to take the biggest step of our lives into the real world.

In two short semesters we will officially become young adults, not only in age, but also in the amount of responsibility we will take on.

Our senior year will be the cornerstone of years to come. It will be filled with joy for new-found freedom and independence. We will talk of future plans and of the hopes and dreams we have.

Along with the joy there will also be a feeling of fear mixed with nostalgia. There will be thoughts of moments from the past. We will reminisce about elementary school when high school students were our role models, and how we looked to them to set the examples for us. Now we are the role models.

Throughout life the roles will forever be changing. One day we will be in our parents' shoes and then our children will eventually be in our shoes. The best we can do is to play the parts we are given.

Balancing Life

The Skill of Juggling

Junior year, probably the most confusing year in high school. Most juniors have to juggle jobs, homework, and their social lives together. It can be difficult but most manage.

We are kept busy making all parts of our lives stay afloat, from jobs to friends to dating, family and school.

The thing that keeps us going is the infamous saying "only ONE more year!"

In this year, juniors start the search for a possibilities for colleges to get ahead when senior year arrives. It seems far away, but most realize it's grueling preparation.

At the time in the student's academic career when grades are important, more stress is added by the notorious SAT's. Hours of studying, computing, deciphering, balancing, and constant worrying, we come out just fine at the end.

Qualities Gathered

The Years Add On

What juniors have now is immeasurable compared to any other year before. Respect. Parents finally realize either their little babies are growing up or that the rebel child has matured and can accept responsibilities. Most juniors have a car, a job, friends, the unbearable physics final, families, clubs, or sports to participate in, and loads of homework to prove their trustworthiness. Respect from the young. Juniors are now classified as upperclassmen and maybe they do not rule the young and inexperienced freshmen, but at least have the knowledge to advise them in their troubled times. Juniors now have three years to vouch for. To a freshman, three years may not seem like a lot of time, but we know who our friends are, and we know the style of most teachers and what to expect of them.

Each day as students, friends, sisters, brothers, peers, teammates, girlfriends, boyfriends, we experience. At Highland High School do we only learn that right angles are congruent, or is it something more? Maybe now we only ask the question and senior year the answer will be revealed.

• Anna Landsman

Sophomores

Moving On Up

Being a sophomore is a great sigh of relief. Although, after spending a year as a freshman just about anything seems like an improvement. It's comforting to know that there are people more lost, confused, and lower on that high school ladder than we are now, although we are still aware that we are not on the highest rung. As sophomores we become a little bit more confident about where we are and what we're doing. Along with the considerable amount of relief that goes along with being a sophomore there also many new dilemmas and other challenges.

The pressure of being in high school becomes more intense knowing that college is nearer and grades are getting more important every year. Most students turn sixteen during sophomore year and though we now have the ability to get around, we are too busy working toward our future to have a good time. The thought that next year we will become upperclassmen helps us to keep on going through the year, that and the fact we will be half-way finished with high school.

Getting the Hang of It

Most people think of sophomore year as being a bore. There's no prom to look forward to, no graduation to plan for, not even any upperclassmen to pick on you as they once did. You're past the terrible "frosh" stage, but you're not quite as accepted as you would like to be. But the people who believe sophomore year is nothing, are obviously too old to remember or too young to know the truth; tenth grade is a very special year.

You are finally a step up from the bottom; you feel more accepted by the older kids. You have gotten to know upperclassmen through sports, band, clubs, and other activities and have discovered that there is no need to feel intimidated. In fact, you may have even become good friends with many of those "big" juniors and seniors.

This is also the year most people get their long-awaited driver's license. No more depending on mom and dad to take you and your friends to the mall or you and your date to a dance. All of those boring Saturday nights of sitting home can be resolved by picking up your friends and cruising the town. At last, your free!

Hard Work Pays Off

Sophomore year is a time when people start to change. Finally they have begun to mature and accept others the way they are. Common things in their everyday life start to be taken more seriously. School, for instance, sophomore year is around the time when most students come to realize that it's time to see school as more than just a place to socialize and make fun of the teachers. That school and their attitudes' towards it has a lot of influence on their futures and how people start to view them.

Sophomores may also start to take school more seriously, not just because they want to, but because they have to. School work becomes a lot harder in the second year of high school, as teachers expect students to handle more responsibilities and work better to hold more depth.

Friendships grow stronger as people begin to plant roots which will grow in years to come. Sophomore year may also be a time when old friends begin to part ways, seeing different interests. One faces many new dilemmas and experiences as a sophomore. A tenth grader may not yet be an upperclassman but they certainly not a nobody.

A Time For Growth

Sophomore year is a year of growth and enrichment brought about with new experiences and opportunities.

New discoveries in our lives also add to the knowledge that we have previously possessed. Sometimes it seems as if the stress of a sophomore is unbearable, but as time progresses most things will fall into place and make life a little easier. By then there will be plenty of other things to worry about; friends, jobs, and SAT's are just the tip of the iceberg. When life finally comes together and you start to relax new things come afoot. As graduation becomes yet one year closer students begin preparing for college and the future lying ahead. When sophomore year rolls around the second step is reached, but dealing with our advancement has to be taken one step at a time. Of course, sophomore year does have its advantages. We are not the "dreaded freshman". Nor are we the last column in the totem pole. Some respect is also attained. No more hiding in lockers and under tables. The truth of the matter is that sophomores are simply not quite upperclassmen but able to be heard and seen.

Freshman Year: A New Beginning

1994-1995 Highland freshmen class officers: Beth Lomax, Gretchen Schu, and Brian Zelenke work toward making freshmen stand out.

Freshman year may be considered the end of your childhood. However, along with the end comes the beginning of a journey down a long hallway, filled with curiosity and wonder, with a door at the end which holds many opportunities on the other side. You have the key, but are you prepared to open it?

High school is here to prepare you for the next step in your life - going out into the "real world" on your own. Making your own decisions and managing your own life. High school will prepare you academically and at the same time will prepare you socially.

In the course of high school there will be many good times. New friends, new relationships, and many new experiences. There will also be plenty of times when nothing seems to go right. A fight with a best friend, a broken-up relationship, and most likely a bad experience here and there. The most important thing to keep in mind is to not let a few bad experiences keep you from enjoying the four short years at HHS. Being a freshmen and all, it's hard to believe that the years will fly by when every day seems to last a decade. But later in the year, looking back you'll think about it and realize how short high school really is.

As far as academics are concerned, high school is probably the most significant time in your life, and freshman year is the time to start striving to be the best.

This is your time. Time to find out what you shine at and to make sure it's used it to the fullest advantages. Everyone shines at something - IT'S INEVITABLE!

Freshman Year: Showing Signs of Maturity

Freshmen always get picked on and blamed, but is it really the way freshmen act, or the way everyone else feels? Freshmen often get stuck with a bad reputation even before they come to the high school. Many feel that this year's freshmen are immature and rude while others feel all high school students are simply in the same boat.

Senior Leslie Machuca feels the freshmen are greedy and just want to become seniors and leave. Of course, when they actually become seniors, they are not going to want to leave everything behind. One sophomore says that freshmen are rude and don't care what anyone thinks about them: "When I was a freshman, I moved out of the way of a senior. Now freshmen are loud, rude, obnoxious, and just push anyone out of their way."

Some freshmen feel it is the sophomores and sometimes others, that are immature. Freshman Josh Wagman feels that most sophomores are cruel to everyone, even each other. Jim Kisse says there is a big difference between the freshmen and sophomores. He feels the sophomores try to rule the freshmen.

Sophomores sometimes feel that this year's freshmen are accepted and get better treatment than they did as freshmen. This may be because of older brothers and sisters in the high school or because the freshmen are so different than the sophomores. Jen Tom says, "This year's freshmen are more social and outgoing. They make their own place to fit in and be accepted."

Most students feel that the freshmen should have to go through everything the sophomores had to go through as freshmen, but maturity has nothing to do with it, except that freshmen are younger.

Freshman Year: Not the End of the World

Walking through those doors into Highland High School for the first time, well, for the first semester is one of the most horrifying ordeals a teenager ever has to face. Everywhere around, hunters. Hunting me, the prey, the freshmen. A goldfish in an ocean of sharks, that's what I was. However, their was no way around it, my entire future relied on these hallways. As time went by, things began to change. Within a few days I started to find my way around, and I realized that not everyone was out to get me. The only thought that stayed with me was the fact that I was shaping my future. I even began to appreciate the high school atmosphere. There were actually advantages to being a freshman, we were treated as more responsible individuals, we were trusted to make wise decisions and take care of our duties. At the same we were still given a little bit of slack because we were new comers.

Besides the required gym class, freshman year turned out fairly well. It was a fresh start, where only about a fourth of the people around could have any real preconceptions. High school is the last stop before you are on your own, and it determines what you will be doing when you are out there. Freshman year is the beginning, but there is no time for mistakes. We must realize that although, as freshmen, it seems as if we are starting down a long winding road, the path is not as long as it seems. Every assignment and every test from the first day forward matters, and there is no time to waste. When the journey seems long and dark we have to remember that our high school career only accounts for only a little more than five percent of our estimated life span, but it determines the everything after.

Freshman Year: Little Fish in a Big Pond

Many people think that freshmen have it made—no semester term papers, project deadlines, or homework till the early hours of the morning. One might wonder if these people ever considered the tremendous social and academic pressures that freshmen face daily.

Remember the first day of high school as a ninth grader? Pondering such dilemmas such as, "Will I get to my classes on time?" "What if I forget my locker combination?" "Did I remember to bring my gym suit?" With all of these things to worry about, it's a wonder how freshmen have time to worry about treatment from upperclassmen. But do they ever! As if being the little guy in a new, huge school isn't bad enough, the entire varsity football team won't let you forget it for one minute.

Freshmen year is a challenge in itself. It's very important to choose the right classes, join the clubs of your interests, and get the feel for high school early on. Freshmen year is the year that guides through the rest of the high school years. It can either turn out to be a year to remember, or a year to forget. Every anticipating eighth grader has their own vision of what they expect high school to be like. The good visions may be filled with parties, dances, games, and dates. The bad ones can be failing classes, getting lost, or getting picked on. One important thing to keep in mind is that if something embarrassing does happen, that it is not the end of the world. One mistake freshmen year will not stay with a person throughout high school; eventually people will forget it ever happened.

Another thing to remember about being a freshman is that your not going through it alone, there is about two hundred-some people with you in the same boat.

STRENGTH

HHS

When you look at high school what do you remember? Was it the sports? It was every teenager's past time on a Friday night. Whether you were on the team, cheered, played in the band, or was just there to watch, it was a social event.

This year we showed our Trojan Pride in all our sports. We improved everywhere. We even gained a girls soccer team. The coaches and the athletes worked together as a team to show their Highland spirit. Their supporters participated in parades, Superstars, Blue and Gold day all in honor of our sports. Sports is a big part of the HHS and we want to thank the coaches, the athletes, and most of all the fans for making this all fun and possible.

The Highland offense lines up for a key play in the game against Munster, while #79 senior Jay Novak rests on the sideline.

Football

*To intercept a ball for a touchdown is worth

Slowly but surely, the Highland Trojans football team made strides towards success in the future. After finishing the '93 season with a record of 0-9, the Trojans came back this year with an improvement of 2-7. That may not sound like an outrageous distinction, but you can't judge a team by its record. A majority of the games this season were too close to call.

Battles with Hammond Gavit, Hammond Morton, Munster, and an undefeated Hammond High made this season one to remember. Senior Matt Novak says, "Everyone did the best they could in every game."

Senior Paul Callaway and Junior Dru Grigson served as captains for the team. The Gridmen went on to finish 1-3 in the Lake 10 Conference. Receiving 1st Team

Senior Blair Brown sprints with the ball towards the goal. Coach Rob Hansen looks on from the sideline at his team's performance.

All-Conference awards were Senior running-back Blair Brown on offense, while Yasir Isa, Brian MacDonald, and Ben Houchin qualified for the defensive squad.

Jason Kloeck won the honor of achieving Academic All-Conference. Honorable Mentions went to Rasem Isa, Steve Ziemniak, Jeff Lane, Josh Mathews, and Matt Havens.

The awards banquet this fall hailed: Blair Brown, MVP; Brian MacDonald, Most Improved; and Paul Callaway, Best Mental Attitude.

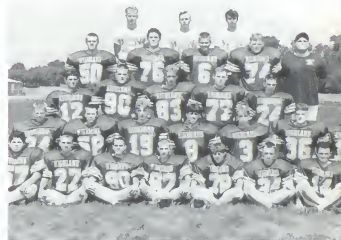

The football team is making small, yet strong steps to the top of the victory ladder. Junior Nate Damasius states, "With a majority of the starting offensive and defensive teams returning, we will definitely be a team to watch out for next year!"

Junior Josh Mathews tries to gain a few yards as he runs with the ball. This year's team record ended up as 2-7.

Hitting the ball for an ace eliminates the deuce for a win.

The boys tennis team started out with an average year and ended with a spark. Four of the seven starting varsity players were named to either first or second All Team Conference. James Barrett, Anthony Van Prooyen, and Steve Yeo were the few among the group to be named First Team All Conference. Tony Doffin was named to Second Team All Conference. That was just a start of the good talent Coach Mazur had to work with this tennis season.

The talent ranged from freshman to seniors. The number one doubles team James Barrett and Steve Yeo won sectionals and advanced to regional play. The number two doubles Paul Whitener and Martin Plawewski made it to the finals of the Highland Doubles Invitational. The tennis team ended up second in the Lake

This year's awards went to all the seniors. Most Valuable: Anthony Van Prooyen, Most Improved: James Barrett, and Best Mental Attitude: Tony Doffin. Other seniors graduating this year are Jeff Burosh, Dave De St. Jean, and Matt Elder. Coach Mazur says, "This year's freshman class of tennis players has lots of potential, and they will help carry the loss of the seniors next year."

The fans are looking forward to another good season next year, sending even more to an all conference win. The future will hold if the young talent can yet bring another victory.

Running for the finish line with all intention to win.

Girls cross country team this year chalked up a second Lake 10 Conference Championship.

The Lady Trojan's team was led by All-State senior Jill Begala. Captains Jill Petska, Kassie Bannister, and Jill Begala provided the senior leadership and experience that was a key ingredient of their winning ways throughout the season.

Jill Petska and Lisa Lane both turned in their finest performances this year. Junior Susan Sprainis and sophomore Jen Tom made strong contributions with supreme efforts throughout the season.

The girls cross country team has left a mark as the only conference champions in the Lake 10s young history.

Seniors Jill Petska and Doug Schwerin run for the finish, while top runner Jill Begala concentrates on her pace.

Boys cross country team this year had a strong season, repeatedly competing amongst the area's top teams.

The boy's team was led by junior Jason Gunn. Jason followed a fine sophomore season with an even better junior year. He earned Lake 10 All-Conference status, the team MVP award, and qualified for the state meet.

Joey Peters, Josh Durham, and Doug Schwerin placed on the Lake 10 All-Conference teams. These fine performances led to a third place finish at the conference meet. Aeris Areguin and David Bakker also did outstanding jobs.

Boys soccer was switched this year, moving their Spring season to the Fall season.

The varsity team had eleven starting players who were great. The captains this year were seniors Joe Mitcheltree, James Palor and Sam Condes. They helped along with others to lead the team to a great season this year making a record of 11-3. They made it all the way to Regionals, losing only to Portage. "We tried to do the best we could and help encourage others to do the same," says senior Tod Trovunivic.

The hard practices, fun games and the notorious desert Friday made the season a success. With the talent and the leadership from this year the season should be a success next fall.

Girls soccer was an addition to the sports complex this year. The team started out with a strong kick. The varsity team and the junior varsity consisted of eighteen members.

The varsity had a record of 1-2-9. Their biggest game of the season was against Munster. They tied with the Mustangs 2-2 in overtime. The tie prevented Munster from capturing the Conference championship title.

The captains were Jill Bogusz, Stacy Dudash and Phrosini Samis. Other key players were Kelly Dudash, Kristen Chapman, and Maloan Skog. The first girls soccer team has definitely made themselves known in their first season in league.

At six o'clock in the morning while most of Highland is still asleep, the varsity girls swim team is already practicing.

This was a season of new beginnings. It was the first season in the new pool for a team composed nearly half of new swimmers and freshmen. New team captains were Kelli Blahnik and Gina Giovanelli. One outstanding freshman, Natalie Zdonek, scored the most varsity points for the team throughout the fall.

The beginning of the season was tough for the team, but by the time the important meets rolled around the girls were ready.

At the Conference the team placed second overall. The relay team of Gina Giovanelli, Melissa Bowen, Michelle Litavec and Natalie Zdonek won 1st team all-conference honors. Individuals placing in the top three were Jackie Rohling, Kelli Blahnik, and Natalie Zdonek. At sectionals the Lady Trojans took a strong third place. Individual Championship Finalists were Rohling with a 2nd in the 50 free, Blahnik with a 5th place in the 100 back and Zdonek with a 3rd place in the 100 breaststroke.

Melissa Bowen sums it up, "This season was the best yet. The new pool created many memories. Being a senior made it hard to leave the team. . .but I'll always remember the wacky times we've had together."

• Kelli Blahnik

"This season was a great one with our new team," says captain Kelli Blahnik.

Kelli Blahnik, Melissa Bowen and Gina Giovanelli show off their awards that were won at this year's sports banquet.

The Lady Trojans line up on their marks to begin the start of the race that could win it all for this swim meet.

Michell Litavec is on her mark while Kim Furman is in the air of her forward Dive Pyke to pick up some team points.

Natalie Zdonek makes waves in the new pool while the Ladie Trojans get excited for the races coming up.

To dig a spike is the roughness that is all a part of the game.

This year was a great success for the volleyball team, having a record of 19-10 making it all the way to sectionals. The team has improved so much over the years, causing them to be put in a tougher bracket this year.

The team opened up with the Whiting Tournament for their first win. Their toughest tournament this year was the Michigan City Tournament and they made it to the finals having to beat Chesterton among other tough teams. All and all it was a very good season with a little bit of excitement with Mr. Elston's new baby.

The team this year consists of six seniors, which was one of their strong points. "As a senior I'm really going to miss playing with my teammates and joking around with Coach E," says senior Kristy Lane. Even though losing many

SECTIONAL CHAMPS! Trojans take Calumet Crown

Taking a look around the Highland High School gym, we see many new changes. A new paint job — a new scoreboard and a great new sound system.

What better to add than a 1995 Sectional Champs banner!

In the beginning, the Trojan basketball team did not look promising. The first two games were losing efforts. This lowered fan support and lessened the team's spirit.

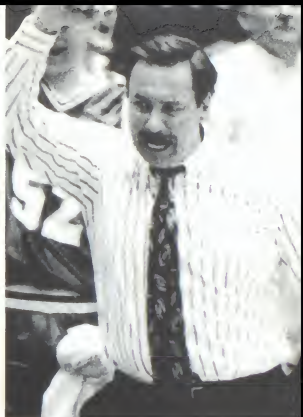

But the tables began to turn when the Trojans dribbled themselves into an eight game winning streak, including winning the Highland Holiday Tourney.

Calumet Sectional action first saw a come-from-behind squeaker against Lake Central. Friday's victory set up the title match against host Calumet. Fan support was excellent; the team was aggressive and accurate, and soon the trophy and the banner were home in Highland hands.

This year's boys' basketball team started out slowly, but ended with a bang. Losing their first three games only gave them the incentive to work harder. At the end of the season, their accomplishments totaled a record of eighteen wins and six losses. To top off the season they were the Calumet Sectional Champions.

The team not only crowned themselves Calumet Sectional Champs, but they won the Holiday Tournament. They also placed second at Conference. Coach Mike Urban says, "This was an outstanding season with great fan support that helped us all the way."

The captains of the team were seniors Sasha Vukas and Josh Durham. The Most Valuable Player was Sasha Vukas with an average of eighteen points

The players that made First Team All-Conference were Sasha Vukas and Justin Tauber. Those players that were awarded Honorable Mentions were Josh Durham and Phil Wojnicz.

This year's boys' basketball team made their place in history. They became the third Highland team to win the Calumet Sectional game. This has only been accomplished by two other teams in Highland's history.

This year has definitely been an exciting one for the Highland Trojans. The players hope that they can make as good a showing as they did this past year. Maybe they can even repeat as Sectional Champs.

This year's girls' basketball team had a great season. It started out with a lot of hard work and effort.

Hard practices lasting to late hours long Saturdays, and firm conditioning was what helped the team improve their game for a great season.

The girls had a record of 7-12 making their season last all the way to the Sectionals. They lost to Calumet in the first game, but put up a good fight. "The first time the team played Calumet is when the team showed a total team effort and began to work together as a team effort," said Coach Equihua.

The team consisted of a lot of young players which makes them look more competitive for next year. There was great improvement from last year which also makes it look promising. The team was led by only two seniors who made great captains this year — Amy Govert and Jamie Waldron.

The teams leading scorer was Amy Govert with an average of 16.2 per game. She received 1st team All Conference. Junior Bridgette Norris was also a top scorer who received Honorable Mention All Conference.

Awards for this season went to Jenifer Kaczka for Most Improved, Amy Govert received Most Valuable Player and Erin Siedl got Best Mental Attitude.

"We bonded this year making it a great season," says captain Melissa Zimmerman.

Cheerleading. This may mean various things to different people. To the people actually involved with the sport themselves, cheerleading evokes many thoughts.

Perhaps the most prominent thought which comes to mind may be of the unbreakable bond between squad members. This bond being the strong ties of friendship which have been formed through seasons of teamwork and endless encouragement. This is a bond which remained and continued to grow stronger as the days went by.

Without this irreversible bond, the accomplishments of the squads would never have been achieved. Namely, the biggest achievement this year—the JV and varsity girls attended a UCA camp at which they qualified to perform at the 1994 Citrus Bowl in Orlando, Florida. Also, two varsity members, Anne Zygmunt and Melissa Zimmerman competed for a chance to march in the Westminster Day Parade in London, England. They qualified and flew to London over Winter Break.

Dedication and perseverance played a large part in the success of the squads this year. The cheerleading season goes year round, which means practicing all summer for camp and football season, and continuing through basketball season. The squads also cheered for the soccer and the girls basketball teams.

This was a season of success and will hopefully grow even more successful in future years.

wrestlers didn't have a chance to wrestle varsity this year," says co-captain Phil Dennis. "I'm real happy with the teams performance." It's also hard to find a student who only weighs 100 pounds. The Grapplers start each dual meet six points behind.

Although there is team spirit and a close bond between the team, wrestling is primarily an individual sport and Highland had its share of individual stars this year. Sectionals began the individual run and Highland had nine wrestlers qualify for regionals and five of the nine went on semi-state.

The most exciting meet of the season this year was Sectionals. Senior co-captain Paul Callaway says, "In my high school career, I have never seen a meet so exciting. Everyone that competed gave their very best efforts to decrease their times in their events."

The boys' swim team had a great year and accomplished a lot this season. Their coach was even honored for his outstanding work. Coach Toweson was elected "Coach of the Year" for the '94-'95 sports year. This award topped off an exciting year for the team.

The boy's baseball team this year had another outstanding season. They showed a lot of enthusiasm for the games they played. Their main goal this year was to win, and that's exactly what they did.

The captains leading the team this year were seniors Phil Gavranic, Brad Kuechenberg, and Yassir Isa. Other seniors playing on the team were Chad Mullins and Dave Kobel.

The top players on the team were Phil Gavranic, Jermie Kubon, Brad Kuechenberg, Phil Wojnicz, Chad Mullins, Yassir Isa and Steve Zienmiak. Also a few underclassmen added to the team's success. They were sophomores Dave Duke and Vince Pistilli as pitchers, and Frank Tokoly at first base position.

However, the whole team gave the support and the ability to give the Trojans a great season. Head Coach Dan Miller says, "Our juniors and sophomores are gaining playing experience that will pay dividends later on this year as well as next year."

Next year's varsity team will advance as well as this year's team did. With the young talent and enthusiasm, the future holds a lot for the team.

With the hard practices and rough games the team picked up a lot of knowledge along the way and a lot of skill too. Highland kept their reputation for a great baseball team this year.

Spring Fashion Show Rated a Great Success!

On April 2, 1995, the Highland High School cheerleaders in cooperation with the Bridal Studio, Dunhill Tuxedo, and Fashion Bug of Merrillville presented "Walking on Sunshine", a look at today's fashions.

All proceeds went to support the Highland Cheerleading program. Various businesses provided raffle prizes, including gift certificates varying from dinners to tanning sessions.

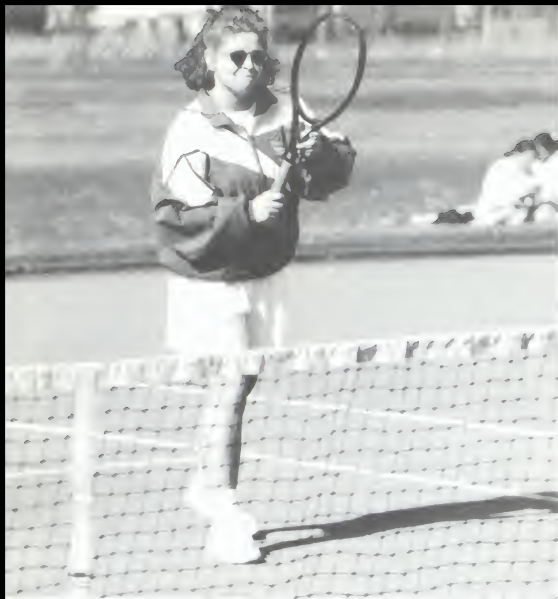

Dougies DJ's Service provided music for the event. Male members of the student body also took part in the event by modeling the latest styles in tuxedos. All flowers were provided by Sandy's Florist of Griffith. The entire event was a huge success according to many who attended.

The team went through alot of rough practices and long talks from coach to help them make this year an accomplishment. The varsity had the privelage to play on a lot of tough course. All together the team experienced a lot to help make an impact on their goals for next year. With a little team effort and hard work team goals were meant. The team's goal this year was just to do as well as the yaeer before and they did that with no problem. Golf is a sport that needs patience and takes time and thats what the team had to do.

This year's Lady Trojans headed into a new season with a new coach. They lost four starters from the previous year leading people to believe they were not going to come through winning. But as the season started the Highland girl's softball team proved everyone wrong.

After defeating Munster, Griffith, Whiting, Lafayette-Harrison, Calumet, and Morton, Highland was rated as the number five team in the area. They also tied for first place for the Conference Championship with Bishop Noll. Coach Bartlett says, "As a first year Highland coach, I'm real pleased with the way all the players have responded to the system. Everyone should expect us to be successful this year and for many years to come."

This year's team was led by six senior captains: Sarah Menke, Kristin Williams, Jill Bogusz, Heather Skertich, Amy Govert, and Melissa Kantowski. Other team members that participated in the team's success were juniors Heather Hugus, Nicole Shiperek, Laura Hoolehan, Michelle Kaweck, and Katie Evilsizor. Some underclassmen that also helped the team were sophomores Erin Seidl and Deanne Crum.

A Year To Remember

From dog search to competitions, from O.J. Simpson to Oklahoma City, the months moved on

1994 — 1995

A Year of Change Comes To A Close

As the school year 1994-1995 came to a close, students reacted with strong feeling to the bombing of a federal building in Oklahoma City. The deaths of little children and well over 140 people was said to be the work not of foreign terrorists, but of Americans who had been misguided into starting the own war with the government and with anyone who does not think as they do.

It was a mourning time, followed by a strong resolution on the part of many to speak out against hatred and cruelty of any kind. The racism and cruelty of a few students was also called to the student body's attention at HHS, and many in the school and in the administration moved to stop those who would hurt within the halls of Highland High School.

Two students did well in the state Science Olympiad, and as graduation grew close, the prom, the spring musical "My Fair Lady" and end of the year testing drew everyone's attention. With the O.J. Simpson trial mired in oblivion, most turned away from that, and went on with their lives.

As the school year wore down, students eagerly looked to graduation or to summer vacation.

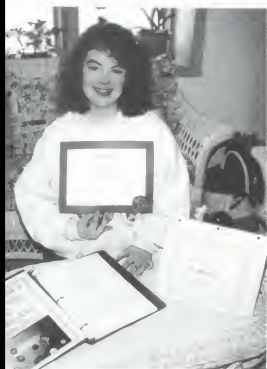

Above, Officer Mike O'Donnell of the Highland Police Department led Colt on a drug search this year. No drugs were found in the high school.

Robert Lugo talked to students about gangs while classes kept on toward the end, with final exams always in the back of students' minds.

Mia and Melissa Billadeau proved supportive students of the school, while Kelly Weyer and Jenny Tom joined an honor society and seniors planned courtyard renovation.

Valerie Jayne and Alyssa Diaz won at state Science Olympiad. Jaime Tucker and Christyne Thys danced.

Jeff Dancho sings "Get Me To the Church On Time". Dave Blair, Carrie Ruhs, and Brian Vargas join the chorus.

My Fair Lady shows off talent, dedication of Theatre Company

The Highland Theatre Company performed its last production of the year, and they went out with a bang! As usual, My Fair Lady was a success, the outstanding vocal and acting abilities left the crowd in amazement and awe. At the same time, some, including the participants, felt a note of sorrow at the thought of this being the last show of the year.

There were many opportunities for hopeful actors and actresses, over fifty students were needed in this play. Although there were a large number of roles, each one was essential to its astounding outcome. Among the students who contributed to making My Fair Lady all that it turned out to be are Carrie Ruhs, Brian Vargas, Matt Courtright and Jeff Dancho, who portrayed the key players. Some of the voices that created the mood and feeling for various scenes came from Michelle Mitchell, Erin Lottino, Rachel Slager, and many more. Besides acting ambition some students are interested in technical duties, and were involved in an important part of the show that we don't always give much recognition to, but they are a vital part of every production. Assistant Directors were Mary Callaway and Mary Albrecht, while David Blair took the role of Production Manager.

My Fair Lady was a very important production to everyone, but even more so to our seniors, as their last production in their high school years. Another round of applause goes out to David Blair, Melanie Wilson, Lauren Loscalzo, Kevin Peterson, Jennie Poe, Sarah Hull, Brad Klemm, Jason Tratta, and Chantelle Warner.

As always in these productions, Highlands actors and actresses got a chance to shine in the spotlight, leaving a blinding light that lingered in every eye that witnessed the last Theatre Company production of the 1994-95 school year.

Phil Wojnicz, Amy Kotynski lead Prom '95 royalty

The evening of May 13, 1995 was a very memorable time for many Highland students. It was this night that the Class of '96 hosted the Junior/Senior prom.

The dance was held at the Radisson Star Plaza's Grand Ballroom. The colors were pastel rainbow. The theme of the night was "Always in My Dreams" and the theme song was "Always" by Bon Jovi.

Dinner consisted of a choice of beef or chicken with au gratin potatoes and vegetable medley.

Court members included Rachael Bishop, Bridgette Norris, Molly Gembolis, Susan Sprainis, and Queen Amy Kotynski. Guy nominees were Terry McDonald, Jeff Smigla, Dave Bakker, Greg Czaja and King Phil Wojnicz.

Music was provided by Sensational Sounds, and centerpieces consisted of elegant mirrors accessorized by brilliant wine goblets filled with iridescent streamers

Kelli Blahnik, Linda Ciganovic speak for Class of '95

Kelli Blahnik and Linda Ciganovic led the Class of '95 as valedictorian and salutatorian in graduation exercises June 11.

As members of the graduating class filed up to receive their diplomas, they became the newest alumni in the 37 year history of Highland High School.

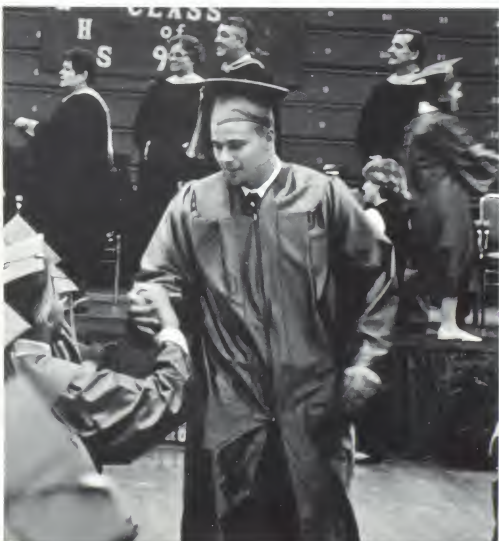

This year's senior class officers were Steve Stasny, president, Paul Callaway, vice president, Gina Giovanelli as secretary and Marty O'Toole as treasurer. Their class sponsor was Mr. Ken Darrow.

Kelli gave the valedictory address, urging her classmates to remember the good they had accomplished during high school. She also urged them to carry their ideals and dreams into their future lives.

HHS Principal Dr. Renner Ventling presented the class for graduation to Superintendent Dr. Philip Cartwright, and Highland School Board members helped pass out the diplomas as the afternoon, and their high school careers, ended for the Class of '95.

Valedictorian Kelli Blahnik brought a standing ovation for her speech. Linda Ciganovic was the class salutatorian.

In scenes from the indoor graduation, the Class of '95 received diplomas and the congratulations of all who were present.

Highland High School • SHIELD • 1995

The 1995 Shield is the official yearbook of Highland High School, located in Lake County, Indiana.

This year's book is printed with 10 pt. Palatino body copy, with Palatino and Optima as main headlines and a variety of other fonts used in special sections. The entire book was set in PageMaker.

Susan Taylor is the representative with the printer, Herff Jones. The book is printed in Shawnee Mission, Kansas for an August delivery.

This year's theme, Inevitable, draws together the many different sides of Highland High School, showing all the spirit, action and growth to be -- Inevitable!

Inevitable!

the 1990s, the number of people in the UK who are employed in the public sector has increased by 1.5 million, from 2.5 million in 1980 to 4 million in 1995. The public sector has grown from 10% of the economy to 15% of the economy.

There is a growing awareness of the need to improve the efficiency of the public sector. The government has set a target of reducing the public sector deficit by 1997. This has led to a number of initiatives to improve the efficiency of the public sector, including the introduction of competition, the restructuring of public services, and the introduction of new management practices.

One of the key initiatives to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the introduction of competition. This has led to a number of public services being opened up to competition, including the postal service, the water supply, and the electricity supply.

Another key initiative to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the restructuring of public services. This has led to a number of public services being reorganised, including the health service, the education service, and the social services.

A third key initiative to improve the efficiency of the public sector is the introduction of new management practices. This has led to a number of public services being managed in a more efficient way, including the health service, the education service, and the social services.

These initiatives have led to a number of improvements in the efficiency of the public sector. For example, the postal service has been able to reduce its costs by 10% since it was opened up to competition. The water supply has been able to reduce its costs by 5% since it was reorganised. The electricity supply has been able to reduce its costs by 10% since it was reorganised.

However, there are still a number of challenges facing the public sector. One of the main challenges is the need to improve the quality of public services. This is a challenge that will need to be met if the public sector is to continue to improve its efficiency.

Another challenge is the need to improve the financial management of the public sector. This is a challenge that will need to be met if the public sector is to continue to improve its efficiency.

These challenges are being met by a number of initiatives. For example, the government has set a target of improving the quality of public services by 1997. This has led to a number of initiatives to improve the quality of public services, including the introduction of new standards, the restructuring of public services, and the introduction of new management practices.

The social services have been able to reduce their costs by 5% since they were reorganised.

the 1990s, the number of people with a mental health problem has increased by 50% (Mental Health Foundation 1999). The prevalence of mental health problems has increased in the general population, and the incidence of mental health problems has increased in the prison population.

There is a growing awareness of the need to address the mental health needs of prisoners. The Department of Health (2000) has published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners. The Department of Health (2000) has also published a strategy for mental health services, which includes a commitment to improve the mental health of prisoners.
